Govt should have allowed opposition MPs to visit Kashmir before EU MPs: Mayawati

Lucknow, Oct 30 (PTI) The government should have allowed opposition MPs to visit Kashmir before EU MPs to assess the situation in the Valley, BSP chief Mayawati said on Tuesday.

“Instead, the EU delegation was allowed to visit the Valley on Tuesday even after opposition MPs were denied entry into the Valley. This shows that the government is keeping Kashmir under a veil of secrecy,” she said.

Mayawati also questioned how the government decided to isolate Kashmir, especially after the revocation of Article 370 provisions.

Why not to Jammu? NPP targets Centre over EU delegation’s Kashmir visit

The government should have allowed opposition MPs to visit Jammu and Kashmir before sending EU MPs to assess the situation in the Valley, Jammu and Kashmir Panthers' Party (NPP) leader Devender Viswam said on Tuesday.

“The government should have sent a delegation to Jammu and Kashmir to travel through its land routes. The government has a special status in Kashmir but the Kashmiris are not treated the same,” Viswam said.

The NPP leader also questioned the government’s decision to isolate Kashmir.

“The government should have sent a delegation to Jammu and Kashmir to assess the prevailing situation there. It would have been better if the government had allowed opposition MPs to visit Jammu and Kashmir,” Viswam said.

New Delhi, Oct 29 (PTI) Priyanka Gandhi Vadra on Tuesday alleged that the Bharatiya Janata Party’s nationalism is strange, allowing European MPs to visit Jammu and Kashmir while Indian politicians are not.

“Europeans are allowed to visit Jammu and Kashmir while Indian politicians are not. Why not to Jammu? NPP targets Centre over EU delegation’s Kashmir visit,” Viswam said.

Both houses deliberated in favour of abrogation of Art 370: Naidu

New Delhi, Oct 30 (PTI) Perspectives of serious differences among ruling and opposition parties over the issue of abrogation of Article 370 in Jammu and Kashmir have been aired by both the Houses.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Naidu and other leaders of the ruling party were in agreement that the abrogation of Article 370 was a historic decision.

The vice president also reiterated his support to the amendments made in the Constitution and noted that the nationwide protests were a threat to the democratic norms of the country.

T H E United States is ready to leave Afghanistan, quite possibly by the latest Trump administration deadline. The United States has already closed its embassy in Kabul and plans to hand over the key to the Taliban. The US intervention in the country has turned into a trillion-dollar disaster. It brought death and destruction, cost lives and, more importantly, brought the US into a war that will last for a long time to come.

The US intervention in the country in 2001 has turned the US into a war-torn country, which will keep terrorism in check. There is no guarantee that the cycle of violence won't continue in Afghanistan, and we don't know when the US will leave Afghanistan. When the US leaves Afghanistan, it will be a victory for the Taliban and a loss for the US. The US will have to accept the reality that the US has failed to achieve its objectives in Afghanistan.

The US left Afghanistan without a clear plan of action. The US left Afghanistan without a clear understanding of the situation in Afghanistan. The US left Afghanistan without a clear understanding of the role of the Taliban in Afghanistan. The US left Afghanistan without a clear understanding of the role of the US in Afghanistan.

Washington: While childhood is associated with making tremendous progress, but for some it is not the same. A new study reveals that children who grow up in poverty and face adversity are more likely to suffer impacts on brain development and function.
The study published in the journal Life & Times says children in poor families are more likely to suffer the long-term impacts of poverty, in addition to being exposed to environmental pollutants, and being more likely to experience health problems. The study also reveals that children in poor families are more likely to suffer from chronic conditions and equipped with less opportunity to achieve their potential.

The findings underscore the need to pay attention to the event in which children are exposed to environmental pollutants and how they impact their health and development.

The study authors say that the findings highlight the need to focus on reducing air pollution and protecting children from exposure to pollutants.

The study involved 3,904 children aged between 3 and 6 years, and measured their lung function and heart rate measures. The children were divided into two groups: those who lived in polluted cities and those who lived in non-polluted cities.

The researchers found that children in polluted cities had lower lung function and heart rate compared to children in non-polluted cities. They also found that children in polluted cities had higher levels of air pollution-related symptoms, such as coughing, sneezing, and wheezing, compared to children in non-polluted cities.

Global Economic Outlook Strongly Dependent On Path Chartered By Nations Like India: Modi

Press Trust of India

Riyadh - Underlining that the economic uncertainty is such that no country, no region, is immune to it, Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Tuesday said the path to achieve strong growth in the Gulf Kingdom diversify its oil-dependent economy by 2024, Modi said in his dealings in India, where GDP growth has slowed down to 4.5 per cent in the first quarter of the current fiscal year, while growth in the economy, where GDP growth is expected to be around 6.0-6.2 per cent in the fiscal year 2021-22, depends on foreign investment and actualizing together to reduce inequality, Modi noted, is an "off" priority, said that "it is felt that if you allow the same to happen, then it will be a boons for the existing economic situation and policies. We have seen that technology is not only an important driver of global growth but also a major determinant of global growth. It has been said that we are living in a new normal world," said that "we are living in a new normal world.
