Study Shows Correlation Between Pregnancy Weight Gain And Heart Disease

Press Trust Of India

Pregnant women gaining more weight than that recommended are at a greater risk of death from heart disease or diabetes later in life, according to a study published in The Lancet journal.

The increased mortality risk was found for all weight groups studied, including those defined as underweight, normal or overweight prior to their pregnancies, the researchers said, having analysed more than 45,000 US women's data 50 years, including their body mass index (BMI) and weight fluctuations during pregnancy.

No heightened risk was, however, found in women who were obese prior to pregnancy, the team of researchers, led by those from the Perelman School of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, said.

"We showed that gaining weight during pregnancy within the current guidelines may protect against possible negative impacts much later in life, and this builds upon evidence of the short-term benefits for both maternal health and the health of the baby," said the study's lead author, Stefanie Hinkle, an assistant professor of Epidemiology and Obstetrics and Gynecology at the university.

Hinkle was apparently referring to the guidelines regarding weight gain during pregnancy outlined by the Centre for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in the US, which recommend a weight gain of not more than 12.5-18 kg in "underweight" women and 5-10 kg in "obese" women.

The "Underweight" and "obese" classifications are according to BMI standards. The CDC recommendations differ if a woman is pregnant with twins.

These days, almost half of those who are pregnant gain more weight than recommended, the researchers said in the study.

They examined data from the Collaborative Perinatal Project, which catalogued data from a racially diverse cohort of people in the US who gave birth in the 1950s or 1960s, and linked their records to mortality data that ran through 2016, approximately 50 years later.

The researchers analysed their BMI and weight gain data and compared them to modern recommendations. Those numbers were then linked first to deaths due to any cause, then to deaths caused by cardiovascular- or diabetes-related issues.

By 2016, approximately 39 per cent of the people in the cohort had died and the death rate varied in correlation with pre-pregnancy BMI - those with the lowest BMI died at a lower rate than those with the highest BMI, the researchers found.

They further found that for women "underweight" before pregnancy, the risk of death related to heart disease climbed by 84 per cent when they gained more than the recommended weight.

Among those having a "normal" BMI, death due to any reason rose by nine per cent and heart disease-related death risk climbed by 20 per cent, when their weight gain was more than that recommended, the researchers said.

Those "overweight" had a 12 per cent higher risk of death and a 12 per cent increase in the risk of diabetes-related death, if they gained excess weight during pregnancy, they said.

However, the researchers found no correlation between high weight gain during pregnancy and subsequent deaths among those "obese" before pregnancy.

Hinkle said while their study wasn't designed to look into that specific point, it's possible this group's already-elevated death rate could have had a bearing on this finding.

The team also said while it is known that weight gain during pregnancy "did not happen in a vacuum," as health care access, nutrition, and stress significantly influenced it, they now had a better picture of the long-term risks associated with unhealthy weight gains and hope to find more that will help address the issue.

Israel-Gaza Conflict

India Trashes Pak's Kashmir Reference At UN

Press Trust Of India

United Nations: India has said it will treat a reference by Pakistan to Kashmir during a Security Council meeting on the Israel-Gaza situation with the contempt it deserves and will not dignify it with a response.

The remarks by India's Deputy Permanent Representative at the UN, Ambassador R Ravindra, came on Tuesday after Pakistan's UN envoy Munir Akram made reference to Kashmir at the Security Council meeting on the situation in the Middle East.

"Before I end, there was a remark of habitual nature by one delegation referring to Union Territories that are integral and inalienable parts of my country," Ravindra said.

"I would treat these remarks with contempt they deserve and not dignify them with a response in the interest of time," Ravindra said.

Israel To Refuse Visas To UN Officials After Guterres Speech On Gaza War

Agencies

Israel will refuse visas to United Nations officials, its ambassador to the UN has said, as the country's spat with the international organisation deepens.

Gilad Erdan made the statement on Wednesday, according to Israeli media, as the fallout from the UN chief's speech at the Security Council the previous day continues.

UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres indirectly criticised Israel for ordering the evacuation of civilians from the north to the south of the Gaza Strip. He also said Hamas's attack on Israel on October 7 did not happen "in a vacuum" as the Palestinians have been "subjected to 56 years of suffocating occupation".

Many countries welcomed Guterres's "very balanced approach", reported Al Jazeera's Gabriel Elizondo from New York. However, Israel was "furious" and its officials called on the UN chief to resign.

Israeli Foreign Minister Eli Cohen, who was at the debate, "was so upset", said Elizondo, "that he cancelled a meeting with the secretary-general that was supposed to happen Tuesday afternoon".

"It is really unusual to see this sort of reaction against the secretary-general," Elizondo added.

"Due to his [Guterres's] remarks, we will refuse to issue visas to UN representatives," Erdan told Army Radio. "We have already refused a visa for Under-Secretary-General for Humanitarian Affairs Martin Griffiths. The time has come to teach them a lesson."

Erdan said on X, formerly Twitter, that the UN chief has "expressed an understanding for terrorism and murder" with this speech.

Later, Guterres posted an extract from his speech on X in an apparent bid to show he has criticised both Hamas and Israel for the crisis in Gaza.

"The grievances of the Palestinian people cannot justify the horrific attacks by Hamas. Those horrendous attacks cannot justify the collective punishment of the Palestinian people," he wrote.

The Palestinian Ministry of Foreign Affairs has condemned Israel's call for the UN secretary-general to resign, describing it as an "unprovoked attack".

With Middle East Crisis, Russia And China Hope To Turn Tables On US

Agencies

WASHINGTON: Since Russia invaded Ukraine, the United States has sought to isolate Moscow and pressure China to keep its distance. With war in the Middle East, Russia and China are seeking to turn the tables.

The United States has cast Russia as the disruptor of the international order at the Security Council, with President Joe Biden promising the world body that Washington would use its veto only sparingly.

But the United States went ahead and vetoed a draft resolution last week it deemed insufficiently supportive of its ally.

In comments likely aimed at consumption in the Islamic world, Russia has accused the United States of escalating the conflict through military reinforcements, while China has lashed out at the US veto and Israel's actions.

The Chinese and Russian reprimands ring hollow for US officials, who doubt the rival powers will engage in painstaking diplomacy along the lines of Secretary of State Antony Blinken's recent trip to the region.

But the United States has historically stood out as a lonely voice in its close embrace of Israel, even if for now European allies are largely joining Biden in backing Israel.

Biden on taking office had aimed to shift from the complexities of the Middle East, seeing China as the greatest long-term challenge to the United States.

"This is not a region where the US has wanted to have a heavy footprint and be actively engaged. At the same time, this president in particular is deeply committed to Israel," said Leslie Vinjamuri, director of the US and Americas program at Chatham House.

China "is quite willing to see the US pulled sideways in its strategic focus into a region that it hasn't wanted to be absorbed by, but now is willingly," she said.

SHIFT OF FOCUS FOR RUSSIA
Hamas militants stormed into Israel on October 7, killing at least 1,400 people, mostly civilians, including inside homes and at a music festival, and taking more than 220 hostages, according to Israeli officials.

More than 5,700 Palestinians, also mostly civilians, have been killed across the Gaza Strip in retaliatory Israeli bombardments, the territory's Hamas-run health ministry said.

The Hamas assault came 50 years after a sneak attack by Egypt and Syria on Israel on the Jewish holiday of Yom Kippur. The two events have drawn parallels but among differences -- Russia was then a major player that backed the Arab states.

Russia returned in force in 2015 to Syria to back Bashar al-Assad, although Russian President Vladimir Putin has also maintained ties with Israel.

"Nobody is expecting Russia to produce any results here -- any kind of ceasefire or any role in trying to negotiate the release of hostages," said Eugene Rumer, director of the Russia and Eurasia program at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

"Since 2022, it has all been about Ukraine, so when this tragedy occurred, it was a gift for Putin because suddenly the attention is diverted away," Rumer said.

Biden has tried to link Putin and Hamas, charging in an Oval Office address last week that both were "tyrants" seeking to "completely annihilate a neighboring democracy."

Hezbollah, Hamas, Islamic Jihad Chiefs Discuss Route To 'Victory' On Israel

Agencies

The head of Lebanon's Hezbollah armed group has met top Palestinian armed group leaders from Hamas and the Islamic Jihad, discussing what their alliance must do to achieve an "all-out victory" over Israel, according to a statement by Hezbollah.

The statement said Wednesday's meeting involved Hezbollah's Sayyed Hassan Nasrallah, Hamas deputy chief Saleh al-Arouri and Islamic Jihad chief Ziad al-Nakhala, without mentioning the location.

"The leaders tackled latest developments since the start of Operation Al-Aqsa Flood and the events that followed on all fronts, including the confrontations across the border between Lebanon and the occupied Palestine," Lebanese state media Al-Manar quoted the statement as saying, referring to the October 7 attack on Israel by Hamas fighters that killed at least 1,400 people in Israel and prompted a retaliation that in turn killed more than 5,700 people in Gaza.

"Sayyed Nasrallah assessed with Nakhale and al-Arouri the international and regional stances as well as steps to be taken by the Axis of Resistance in this critical phase in order to achieve an all-out victory and to stop the brutal attack on the oppressed people of Gaza and the West Bank," the statement added.

Since the October 7 attack, Hezbollah has had near-daily exchanges of fire with Israeli forces along the Israeli-Lebanese border.

The Lebanese group announced on Wednesday that two more of its fighters had been killed, increasing the death toll in its ranks to 40 fighters since the start of the conflict.

On Tuesday, the health ministry said that 704 Palestinians, including 305 children, were killed as Israel ramps up its aggression against the enclave.

The UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs said Tuesday's death toll was the highest figure reported in a single day since the conflict began.

In the occupied West Bank, at least 100 people have also been killed in clashes with the Israeli military, the Palestinian health ministry said.

Amid fears that the conflict could spill over across the Middle East, Israel's military said its jets also hit Syrian army infrastructure in response to rockets launched from the neighbouring country.

NCERT Committee Recommends Replacing 'India' With 'Bharat' In School Textbooks; No Decision Yet, Says Council

Press Trust of India

NEW DELHI: "India" should be replaced with "Bharat" in the school textbooks for all classes, a high-level committee for social sciences, constituted by the National Council of Educational Research and Training (NCERT) to revise the school curriculum, has recommended. According to committee chairperson C I Isaac, the panel has suggested replacing the name "India" with "Bharat" in the textbooks, introducing "classical history", instead of "ancient history", in the curriculum and including the Indian Knowledge System (IKS) in the syllabus for all subjects.

NCERT Chairman Dinesh Saklani, however, said no decision has been taken yet on the panel's recommendations.

The council later said on X: "NCERT states that since the development of new syllabus and textbooks is in the process and for that purpose various Curricular Area Groups of domain experts are being notified by the NCERT. So, it is too premature to comment."

"The committee has unanimously recommended that the name 'Bharat' should be used in the textbooks for students across classes. We have also recommended introducing classical history instead of ancient history in the textbooks," Isaac told PTI.

"Bharat is an age-old name. The name Bharat has been used in ancient texts, such as Vishnu Purana, which is 7,000 years old," the Padma Shree awardee said.

The name "Bharat" first appeared officially when the government sent out G20 invites in the name of "President of Bharat", instead of "President of India".

Later, the nameplate of Prime Minister Narendra Modi during the summit in New Delhi also read "Bharat", instead of India.

Isaac said the coming committee has also recommended highlighting "Hindu victories" in various battles in the textbooks.

"Our failures are presently mentioned in the textbooks. But our victories over the Mughals and sultans are not," said Isaac, who is also a member of the Indian Council of Historical Research (ICHR).

"The British had divided Indian history into three phases -- ancient, medieval and modern -- showing India in darkness, unaware of scientific knowledge and progress. Therefore, we have suggested that the classical period of Indian history be taught in schools, along with the medieval and modern periods," he added.

The NCERT is revising the curriculum of the school textbooks in line with the National Education Policy (NEP) 2020. The council recently constituted a 19-member National Syllabus and Teaching Learning Material Committee (NSTC) to finalise the curriculum, textbooks and learning material for these classes.

Explained: What Delayed Israel's Ground Invasion Of Gaza

Agencies

JERUSALEM: Israel has not launched a ground invasion of Gaza, despite announcing its imminence, a delay media reports and experts attribute to international pressure, political-military divisions and concerns over hostages.

Eighteen days after the deadliest attack ever launched into Israel by the Palestinian Islamist movement Hamas that rules Gaza, the Israeli military is relentlessly pounding the territory.

But apart from some relatively minor incursions, the much-vaunted land offensive has not been unleashed.

"There's a crisis of confidence between (Israeli Prime Minister) Benjamin Netanyahu and the IDF (army)," noted editorial writer Nahum Barnea in the daily Yedioth Ahronoth.

"The government is having difficulties taking decisions that everyone agrees on about the top issues," he wrote.

According to government and military sources cited by Barnea, "Netanyahu is angry at the generals and blames them for what happened" during what Israelis are calling "the October 7 fiasco".

On that day, the country was left stunned after Hamas militants stormed across the Gaza border and went on a rampage that Israeli officials say has killed more than 1,400 people.

They also snatched more than 220 hostages in the worst-ever attack in Israel's history, which has prompted a ferocious Israeli bombardment of Gaza which Hamas officials say has killed 5,791 people.

"Disputes over these operations are creating tensions, especially between Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and Defence Minister Yoav Gallant," wrote columnist Amos Harel in Tuesday's left-leaning Haaretz daily.

State radio noted "dissent between the premier and senior ranks in the military", with mutual accusations of failing to prevent the bloody attack by Hamas militants.

"Mutual trust" - Commentators say the fact that official statements often mention convergence of views at the highest level means the opposite, revealing the artificial nature of a united front.

"The prime minister, the defence minister and the IDF chief of staff are working in close and full cooperation, around the clock, to lead the State of Israel to a decisive victory over Hamas," said a communique on Tuesday from the Government Press Office.

"There is total and mutual trust between the prime minister, the defence minister and the IDF chief of staff; the unity of the goal is clear."

Patrick Bettane, an intelligence specialist at Israel's International Institute for Counter-Terrorism (ICT) think tank, confirmed "disagreement about a ground offensive".

"But the fact that there are hostages being held in the Gaza Strip complicates everything," he said.

"Israel is waiting to see how this problem can be resolved before it acts."

Relatives of those seized and taken to Gaza have staged daily demonstrations outside Gallant's home in Tel Aviv.

Akiva Eldar, an expert on Israeli politics, asserted that "after the emotions aroused by this terrible massacre, Bibi (Netanyahu) and the generals are starting to think differently".

Man Gets Postal Job After 28-Year Wait Following Supreme Court Order

Press Trust of India

NEW DELHI: Twenty-eight years after a man applied for a job in the postal department, the Supreme Court has ordered his appointment noting that there was an error in holding him ineligible for the post. Ankur Gupta had applied for the post of postal assistant in 1995. After being selected for pre-induction training, he was later excluded from the merit list on the ground that he completed intermediate education from the "vocational stream".

Gupta along with other unsuccessful candidates moved the Central Administrative Tribunal which ruled in their favour in 1999. The postal department challenged the tribunal's order and approached the Allahabad High Court in 2000. The high court dismissed the petition in 2017 and upheld the CAT's order. A review was filed in the high court which was also dismissed in 2021, following which the department approached the Supreme Court.

In the top court, a bench of justices Bela M Trivedi and Dipankar Datta said a candidate cannot claim a vested right to appointment, once he is included in the merit list, he has a limited right of being accorded a fair treatment. "However, if the candidature is not rejected at the threshold and the candidate is allowed to participate in the selection process and ultimately his name figures in the merit list though such candidate has no indefeasible right to claim appointment, he does have a limited right of being accorded fair and non-discriminatory treatment," the bench said.

The Supreme Court said the employer, if it is a State within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution, would have no authority to act in an arbitrary manner and throw the candidate out without rhyme or reason.

"The employer-State being bound by Article 14 of the Constitution, the law places an obligation, nay duty, on such an employer to provide some justification by way of reason," it said. The bench said if the department had declared Gupta as ineligible based on the appreciation of the educational qualification at the threshold, the situation would have entirely been different. "However, it was not at the threshold that the third respondent was considered ineligible." "As the factual narrative would reveal, the appellant had considered the third respondent eligible, allowed him to take part in the various tests in connection with the selection process, interviewed him, placed his name quite high in the merit list, and thereafter sent him for 15 days' pre-induction training starting from 15th March, 1996," it said.

J&K Team For Tibet To Find Truth Of 'Shahtoosh Threat'

Observer News Service

Srinagar: Chief Minister Farooq Abdullah today said the Centre would be approached to seek China's permission for facilitating the visit of a team to Tibet to find if continuing Shahtoosh trade threatens antelope.

Speaking at a function held in observance of the mil-lennium's first wildlife week here this afternoon, the chief minister said the team will comprise wildlife officials and representatives of Shahtoosh traders whose trip would be sponsored by the government. "If the team feels threat to antelope as genuine, the Shahtoosh traders will have nothing to do with it", he said, adding that with this the controversy over the issue would end once for all.

The chief minister said that as a result of measures taken to preserve wildlife, their population is on increase in the state. He stressed for creating awareness among the people especially students about the need for protecting wildlife and said that two zoos would be set up at Manda in Jammu and Dachigam in Srinagar for people to see nature's fauna. He asked for preparing comprehensive plans for conservation of various sanctuaries like Hokersar, Hygam and Mirgund.

Abdullah called for evolving a mechanism and adopting an integrated programme for making use of dead wood as fuel by those living near forest while stringent measures would be taken for preserving the green trees. Steps have to be taken for bridging the gap between energy-need and energy source. This has become imperative in view of growing pressure of forest resource since other sources of energy like electricity and LPG have become costlier and scarce. He made a fervent appeal to the people for making judicious use of electricity, generation of which is affected during winter due to lesser water flow.

Children's Digital Isolation

The excessive use of smartphones is not only contributing to a surge in neurological disorders among children in Kashmir but is also significantly impacting their ability to speak and communicate effectively, say the health experts in their interview to this paper. At GB Pant Hospital, Kashmir's major healthcare facility, doctors say they are seeing four to five children who exhibit speech delays attributed to their excessive screen time. This growing problem reflects a broader problem within society. Smartphones have become endemic to our lives and children are not insulated from this.

One of the root causes of this crisis is the inability of parents to engage in meaningful conversations with their children. Hectic work schedules and other commitments often leave parents with little time to interact with their kids. Instead, they resort to the temporary pacifier that smartphones seem to offer. For many, the lure of using smartphones to occupy and entertain children proves tempting. However, it is important to acknowledge the consequences. By providing their children with expensive phones, parents inadvertently alienate them, as their focus becomes fixated on the digital screens. The consequences are dire, as children's social-emotional development and parent-child interactions suffer due to excessive mobile use, as our story adequately highlights.

The COVID-19 pandemic exacerbated this issue as people were confined to their homes, increasingly glued to their mobile devices. With parents consumed by their screens, children's opportunities for face-to-face interaction dwindled, pushing them further into the digital world. This led to a rise in various health problems, including obesity, sleep issues, and mental health disorders like depression and anxiety.

A 2022 study conducted by the Department of Social and Preventive Medicine at Government Medical College (GMC) also highlighted this grim reality. The research found that 94.1 percent of parents believed their children's mental health was suffering due to prolonged screen use. The study also revealed a link between childhood obesity rates and screen time, inactivity, sedentary lifestyles, and insufficient physical activity.

It is thus imperative that parents reconsider the impact of excessive smartphone use on their children. The solution lies in re-establishing real-world connections and nurturing the fundamental parent-child relationship. It is true that the problem is not confined to Kashmir alone, it is a worldwide worry. In Kashmir, as in many parts of the world, the parents should be made to realize the crucial role that genuine human interactions play in a child's development. The onus is on parents to recognize the detrimental effects of excessive mobile phone use and take steps to keep their children away from it, more so, in the early years of their life.

Minnows No More

World Cups often become a platform for sporting coups. Afghanistan precisely did that, stunning fancied rivals England at Delhi and Pakistan in Chennai. Even if losses were suffered against Bangladesh, India and New Zealand, Hashmatullah Shahidi's men have shown that they are no push-overs and will compete at all costs. Afghanistan's cricketing roots can be traced to the refugee camps at Peshawar in neighbouring Pakistan. In the past when the Cold War and the Great Game staged by the Western and Eastern Blocs with Kabul as its pivot bequeathed instability within the rugged Afghan countryside, cricket was a welcome distraction for children as any piece of ramshackle wood and a taped-ball within a camp was adequate to indulge in the sport. Things got worse with the rise of the Taliban and the loss of individual liberties but Afghanistan's cricketers remain the dispensers of hope. In Rashid Khan, the country has a world-class player. Aggressive openers and a muscular middle order have learnt to blend patience with intrinsic aggression and bowlers refuse to be overawed. All this has kept Afghanistan in good stead. The manner in which England was bundled out or Pakistan's total was pursued reveals a unit that has turned the corner and would obviously bristle at the mention of the word 'minnows'.

The Netherlands too mounted the odd upset by nailing South Africa. The two countries with a colonial Dutch connect have cultural, economic and sporting threads linking them and current Netherlands player Roelof van der Merwe has previously turned out for South Africa. The Netherlands may have lost its other games but there is no mistaking its talent. This is a World Cup for which the West Indies failed to qualify. The benchmarks are high and for the Netherlands to scale them, qualify and now compete, it is indeed a tremendous achievement. As the tournament veered towards its mid-point, host India revealed a rich vein of form, winning five games and is close to sealing the semifinal berth. Skipper Rohit Sharma and Virat Kohli are the batting bulwarks while Jasprit Bumrah, Ravindra Jadeja and Mohammed Shami played their parts. New Zealand, barring that one loss to India, has been consistent while South Africa and Australia are jostling in the top-half. The wins by Afghanistan and the Netherlands have opened up the points table and small margins will define big shifts in the coming weeks. That defending champion England has slid to the bottom remains a shocker while the Asian component of Pakistan, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka are searching for a toehold. And for now, India holds the aces.

Cairo Peace Summit: A Failed Attempt?

Asad Mirza

The Cairo Peace Summit, hosted by Egypt and held in the New Administrative Capital, east of the Egyptian capital Cairo, was chaired by Egyptian President Abdel Fattah el-Sissi.

It was attended by virtually every Arab nation and the U.N. Secretary-General Guterres, who calling for action "to end this terrible nightmare", listed three immediate goals: unhindered humanitarian assistance to besieged civilians in the Gaza Strip, the immediate and unconditional release of all hostages kidnapped from Israel, and committed efforts to curb violence to prevent the conflict from escalating.

The conflict could only be solved with a two-state solution, one for Israelis and one for the Palestinians, he said. As foreseen, Israel was not represented at the summit, as it wants to portray itself as the victim not the aggressor.

If we take a close look at the speeches delivered at the summit, we'll realise that though they reflected growing anger in the region, even among those with close ties to Israel who have often worked as mediators, the sad reality was that the summit was only a talk shop with no concrete action decided upon.

On 20th October, Israeli Defence Minister Yoav Gallant laid out a three-stage plan in which airstrikes and "manoeuvring" - a presumed reference to a ground attack - would aim to root out Hamas before a period of lower intensity mop-up operations. Then, "a new 'security regime' would be created in Gaza along with the removal of Israel's responsibility for life in the Gaza Strip," Gallant said.

No one reacted to this statement, but most Arab leaders chose to show their hollowness and contradictory views, when they talked about the safety of Palestinians but shied away from taking or charting a cohesive strategy to counter Israel's war mongering actions.

On the other hand the European leaders who seem to be supporting Israel's right to self-defence, strangely forget about the Palestinian's right to survival, right to self-defence and right to their motherland and ensuring the prevalence of the rule of law, of which every western nation is so enamoured of.

So far, European officials have largely played down Israel's attacks on Gaza's civilians, instead stating that Israel has a right to defend itself and asking that Israel allow humanitarian aid into the besieged enclave.

This contradictory stance adopted by European leaders giving Israel the right to defend, though contrasts with the various Arab voices but in reality these Arab voices have also been only rhetorical with no confirmed or planned action against Israel. One reason for this could be that they don't want the conflict to conflagrate into a wider regional conflict.

Further, the speeches also showed that Summit's host Egypt was specifically concerned about a massive influx of Palestinians crossing into its territory, something that it fears would, among other things, severely undermine hopes for a Palestinian state. Egypt worries that a mass exodus would risk bringing militants into Sinai, from where they might launch attacks on Israel, endangering its peace treaty with Israel.

On the same footing, King Abdullah II of Jordan, whose country maintains diplomatic links with Israel, voiced "unequivocal rejection" of the forced displacement of Palestinians. "This is a war crime according to international law, and a red line for all of us," he said, but shied away from making any substantial statement supporting the Palestinian cause.

Arab countries also fear, and on that count they are not wrong, a repeat of the mass exodus of Palestinians from what is now Israel before and during the 1948 War surrounding its crehe made on social media accusing Israel of committing "war crimes" and breaching international law.

Paddy Cosgrave, a co-founder of the European tech conference Web Summit which brings together thousands of leading tech startups and firms in Lisbon, Portugal, resigned after receiving backlash from sponsors and attendees. He said his personal views had become a "distraction from the event" and apologised for "any hurt" he had caused.

Apparently, his follow-up posts were not enough to win over a list of key event sponsors including tech heavyweights Meta, Google, and Stripe, who announced they would boycott the event.

In addition, in a letter released on Friday last week, dozens of Hollywood actors and actresses, including Cate Blanchett and Susan Sarandon, urged U.S. President Joe Biden to call for a ceasefire in Gaza.

This comes in the background of many business executives pledging to blacklist Harvard students who belong to groups that signed a letter blaming Israel for the latest outbreak of violence, while several journalists have been suspended or fired due to posts that are critical of Israel or express pro-Palestinian views.

Rights advocates say much of the corporate response has minimised the suffering in Gaza and created an atmosphere of fear for workers who want to express support for Palestinians. At the same time Jewish groups have criticised tepid responses or slow reactions to the Hamas attack on 7th October.

The Council on American-Islamic Relations, the largest Muslim civil liberties and advocacy organisation in the country, denounced the backlash against the students and statements from U.S. corporate leaders that "lack any meaningful display of sympathy toward Palestinian civilians".

All these developments if viewed impartially, proves that in today's world, so-called developed and free nations still believe in spilling blood rather than resolving their conflicts through mediation or adopting a conciliatory approach, and this completely exhibits the hollowness and contradictory nature of their policies and political system, and it doesn't augurs well for the future.

Prioritising Limited Screen Time for Children's Well-being

I am writing to address an urgent concern that affects the well-being and development of our younger generation - the excessive screen time that children are exposed to in today's digital age. It is essential that we recognize the potential risks associated with unrestricted screen time and take proactive steps to ensure a healthier balance between technology use and real-world experiences. In recent years, the proliferation of screens in our lives has been remarkable, providing us with unprecedented access to information and entertainment. However, the impacts on children are increasingly worrying. Extended screen time has been linked to various issues, such as disrupted sleep patterns, sedentary lifestyles, and even negative effects on mental health. The potential consequences are not to be taken lightly, as they can have far-reaching implications for the physical, cognitive, and emotional development of our youth. To address this concern, parents, educators, and policymakers must work together to establish guidelines and boundaries for children's screen time. Encouraging outdoor activities, physical play, and face-to-face interactions should be prioritized to promote healthy growth and social skills. Moreover, educational initiatives that teach children about responsible technology use can help them develop the necessary skills to navigate the digital world safely and thoughtfully. As a society, we must recognize that screens are a tool, not a substitute for genuine human interactions and experiences. By setting limits on screen time and offering alternative activities, we can empower children to lead more balanced lives and develop essential life skills that extend beyond the virtual realm. In conclusion, it is crucial that we address the issue of excessive screen time among children. By fostering a culture of balanced technology use, we can ensure a brighter future for our youth, one that promotes their holistic development and well-being.

How Poetry Can Save Our World

MUGEES UL KAISAR

The contemporary overarching paradigm that we breathe in today is what some thinkers have referred to as "metaphysics of violence". It has roots in post-Aristotelian Western philosophy where (organic/holistic/dynamic) Reality is broken down into static fragments/"things" to be arrested by categorical thought in order for the humans to dominate & exploit "nature". This metaphysics – which sees reality as pulverised static entities/things – in tandem with modern humanism led to metaphysics of violence i.e. human being perceives reality as arrestable resources to "catch"/prey for the sake of human domination. This has manifested in modern scientific exploitation of nature resulting in catastrophic environmental crisis.

Modern humanism perceives humans to be ontologically disjointed from nature rather than being grounded in it and sustained by it. In Heidegger's terms, technology is not mere "technique" but rather a proper ontology (worldview, to use a popular word) under which Reality is revealed through the category/lens of "resources". Everything is reduced down to a mere resource/"use". Human beings cannot live without some ontological posture under which Reality reveals or unconceals itself through one category or the other. A tree, for example, reveals/unconceals itself to a scientific laboratory through a particular category i.e. resources, chemicals, atoms, etc whereas the same tree reveals itself totally differently within the ontology of a poet – constituting realities such as wonder, mystery, beauty, life, etc.

The popularized version of objective scientific reductionism which is often posited at such an occasion, although may be problematized by Philosophy of Science and Sociology of Science, nevertheless becomes irrelevant if we take the scientific reductionism to its logical end conclusion. If someone says that colours, sounds, perceptions, emotions or experience in general is nothing but chemical reactions then one may proceed and ask as to what these chemicals are; if we say that the chemicals are nothing but atoms and molecules reacting with each other, we may consistently continue our reductionism and ask further as to what these molecules and atoms are? The expected reply would be that the atoms are nothing but sub-atomic particles which in turn are waves of possibilities. We may continue our reductionism and ask further as to what these waves are? If we say that they are manifestations of physical fields or energy, the question doesn't stop there as per the logic of reductionism. One may continue further and ask as to what these fields are or what this energy is in its essence? Finally, at the end, one inevitably arrives at the dead end of mystery anyway. Science, particularly contemporary physics, therefore, arrives at "mystery" which the poet fundamentally registers at the very beginning in his very first step.

THIS IS WHAT CAPITALISM THEN FEEDS UPON. AN OLD PEN OF SCHOOL DAYS BELONGING TO ONESELF OR ONE'S GRANDPARENT, FOR EXAMPLE, OR AN OLD CUP OR AN OLD PHOTOGRAPH OR AN OLD GARMENT IS NOT A MERE OBJECT. There is always a "remainder" beyond use. This poetic interface with the world in which we all participate every now and then when we look at an old cup or a pen or a photograph

Moreover, reductionism is yet another feature of the same metaphysical posture that we have pointed out above i.e. reducing complex qualitative systems/wholes down to quantitative simplicities such that "control" becomes easy. Capitalism also finds itself at home within this contemporary dominant paradigm because it too is obsessed with "numbers" such that manipulating/controlling customers becomes easy in order to churn out more & more profit.

Coming back to our main subject matter, Reality reveals itself through multiple categories. In our times, the dominant category is "resource". To paraphrase Iain Mcgilchrist's words, the contemporary scientific worldview is dominated by left (brain) hemisphere perspective wherein "detail" is of primary importance to get hold of specifics while as larger background context is largely missed or ignored which is the job of the right hemisphere. Poetry can help us redeem the mystery and larger/wider complexity of the world at hand. This richer lens which unconceals/reveals reality in a more organic/natural way (instead of forcefully channelizing reality through the filter of "resource") can redeem both us & our world.

The contemporary paradigm of "resource" gives rise to "instrumentalist" mentality which gradually creeps into our own personal lives and the larger cultural milieu as potentially argued by the Frankfurt school. Everything becomes an "instrument" of use. Human relations begin to be eaten away by instrumentalism. Every affair becomes transactional. This is what capitalism then feeds upon. An old pen of school days belonging to oneself or one's grandparent, for example, or an old cup or an old photograph or an old garment is not a mere object. There is always a "remainder" beyond use. This poetic interface with the world in which we all participate every now and then when we look at an old cup or a pen or a photograph i.e. when we come out of instrumentalist ontology and register deeper mystery of the magic of experience/existence per se, we instantly drop the attitude of exploitation of nature.

Objects of experience become existential ruptures to "sublime"/Transcendent which escapes reductive language. Scientific reductions of experience into objects/matter/atoms/things do not take anything away from the sublime/mystery. Materialist reductionism is anyway a scientifically false paradigm because phenomenal reality is nothing but a "process" & the abstract (mathematical) universals and "intelligibles" are beyond physical reductionism. There are no material "things" out there in the universe as understood by classical physics but dynamic processes which are in relationship to each other. Their essence/origin/source

(what we may call Godhead or zaat) ultimately remains a mystery to individualistic dualistic Cartesian cogito.

Art/poetry always has this remainder which escapes "exploitative" thought. The aim of "thought" is to essentialize/capture/define/arrest/locate in order to create a certain controllable "use". Art has no instrumental use. Art is, instrumentally, useless. Art attends to the mystery/sublime aspect of anything and everything which is its real essence. Let us look at few insights from Heidegger on art to substantiate our point.

Heidegger once referred to Von Gogh's painting of an old pair of tattered shoes of a peasant woman to make his point on art. Please note that there has been a heated discussion on this painting amongst Heidegger, Meyer Schapiro & Derrida which is beyond the scope of this article. We will primarily be focussing on Heidegger's take here. For better comprehension, readers might consider looking at the painting by searching it online before reading the article further.

The first feature of art is that it de-contextualizes a "thing" such that its absolutely unique irreducible "Being" is revealed without the mediation of any instrumentality. Within normal perception, for example, any pair of shoes is not even registered. We use shoes to walk and that's it. This mundane unreflective attitude towards the world wherein things are reduced down to mere instruments to be used – inevitably creates a dehumanized posture towards the world. By plucking out a pair of shoes from its mundane overarching/overshadowing context, Van Gogh is able to show the deep meaning of otherwise unsubstantial pair of shoes. The painting of an old pair of tattered shoes tells a whole story of its own. It is brought to life on its own. The painting lays bare the day to day suffering of an old lady; the immediacy and concreteness of daily struggle. Heidegger writes in The Origin of the Work of Art, "From the dark opening of the worn inside of the shoes the toilsome tread of the worker stares forth. In the stiffly rugged heaviness of the shoes there is the accumulated tenacity of her slow trudge through the far-spreading and ever-uniform furrows of the field swept by a raw wind".

Art brings out the pure irreducible "thingliness" (Being) of a thing which otherwise we fail to see in "things" from an instrumentalist mentality. By de-contextualising things from their contexts where things are "concealed"/overshadowed, art unconceals the Being/"thingliness" of things. Art is a ground which is open to the rupture of Being such that unconcealment happens. Being "happens" in art. Art, therefore, is a rupture of Being. It, therefore, presents the actual nature of reality in itself wherein Being/existence ruptures (or comes) into being from behind/mystery/void. This is the important alternative vision of Reality as an "event" (that happens) as opposed to a "present at hand" static things/material to be captured by static categorical thought.

Art, therefore, teaches us to remain open to Reality/revelation which happens. This is why "thinking", for (later) Heidegger, means waiting for reality to reveal itself rather than calculating its arrest through prior manipulations. This poetic attitude can de-fang our technology-based-culture which cannot now be materially reversed by turning back the wheel. It is the "poetic" attitude – which does not reduce Being to "things"/resources – that can save us. One recalls here, Heidegger's student, Gadamer's pertinent message to the world by which we conclude, "I would say that it will remain a task for humanity to see the limitations of the great legacy of our scientific culture. Because otherwise, we will surely kill ourselves one day ... we cannot eliminate the risks which lie in misuse. And yet, I believe that we have to run the risk that the power that has been placed in the hand of mankind will become increasingly strong, increasingly great, and therefore, increasingly dangerous for self-destruction. This is a monumental task if humanity is to be able to survive; and this will only be possible if we overcome this one-sidedness of the will to dominate and mastery of doing by cultivating other powers, such as that involving suffering & compassion, or to speak with a poet, if we learn to honor again the human soul's ability to dream".

Polycystic Ovary Syndrome And Gut Health: What You Need To Know

Goitseone Thamae

Polycystic ovary syndrome (PCOS) affects around 8% to 13% of women during their reproductive years. Symptoms include irregular menstrual cycles, acne, excessive facial hair growth, voice changes, ovarian cysts and challenges in conception. It can also increase your risk of developing Type 2 diabetes and heart disease.

Despite its prevalence, a significant number – up to 70% – of PCOS cases worldwide go undiagnosed. This is in part because there isn't one specific test for diagnosis.

The cause of PCOS remains unclear – it's a complex condition influenced by both genes and environmental factors. But what we do know is that it can take a huge emotional toll on women, particularly in relation to body image and fertility.

In recent years, scientists have started looking at PCOS and the gut microbiome of sufferers to see if there's a link.

These studies have found that the gut microbiome in women with PCOS is different from those without the condition.

Women tend to have more diverse gut microbiomes, compared to men. But females with PCOS have fewer types of bacteria in their stool and that mix of bacteria is different compared to women without PCOS.

Lower diversity of gut bacteria is linked to higher testosterone levels and excess hair growth. It's also connected to problems like abnormal cholesterol levels and being overweight – as well as insulin resistance, which is when cells in your muscles, fat and liver don't respond well to insulin and can't easily take up glucose from your blood. All of which are seen with PCOS.

GUT HEALTH AND PCOS

Many things can affect the types of microbes living in our gut – what we eat, sex hormones, our sleep quality, where we live and our weight. But while the gut microbiome was once viewed primarily as a digestion aid, it's now acknowledged as an intricate player in our overall health. Research has found that women with PCOS are more likely to have unhealthy dietary habits compared to women without PCOS. Women with PCOS are also more likely to be overweight or obese.

One recent theory as to the role that gut microbiome plays with PCOS is that an unhealthy diet can upset the balance of bacteria in our gut. This is known as gut dysbiosis. The theory suggests that this imbalance might make the lining of the gut permeable allowing harmful substances from certain bacteria to leak into the bloodstream – also known as leaky gut.

This, in turn, can trigger the immune system and mess with how insulin works, leading to high insulin levels, more male hormones being made in the ovaries and problems with how the ovaries make eggs.

New research has found that there seems to be a link between PCOS and some of the chemicals made when good bacteria in the gut digest fibre from food. These chemicals influence the metabolic and hormonal aspects of PCOS and when their production is increased through fibre intake, it seems to improve PCOS symptoms.

A 2021 study also discovered that specific types of bile acids – which play a role in fat digestion – are present in larger amounts in people with PCOS. In those with PCOS, two types of bile acids are much higher. One of those acids, deoxycholic acid, is linked to how the body stores fat and insulin levels before and after meals and is also affected by testosterone.

So it may be that altered bile acid in people with PCOS negatively affects the gut bacteria. And that these changes weaken the gut walls, contributing to a leaky gut – which then worsens PCOS-related symptoms. But it's also important to note that the relationship between bile acids, insulin and hormones like testosterone is complex and can vary from person to person.

GUT HELP

Probiotics, which introduce beneficial microorganisms to the gut, have been shown to be helpful in restoring microbial equilibrium. A 2019 publication found that when women with PCOS took a specific probiotic called bifidobacterium lactis V9, it led to an improvement in gut health.

A study that's currently underway is looking at whether probiotics or metformin (a diabetic medication used in the treatment of PCOS) can lower the levels of a hormone called free testosterone, which is often high in PCOS. The researchers are also checking other things related to PCOS, like metabolism as well as looking at gut bacteria to see if that changes too.

Other things that have been shown to be good for gut health more broadly are eating healthily, getting enough good quality sleep, limiting or avoiding alcohol and exercise. Indeed recent research shows that a keto diet – which involves eating low carb high-fat foods – may also help to reduce testosterone levels in women with PCOS.

Transforming Dreams into Success: The Rise of Startups in Jammu and Kashmir

Firdos Ahmad

In the serene landscapes of Jammu and Kashmir, a silent revolution is taking place, one that is empowering the youth and transforming job seekers into employers. Over the past two years, startups in the region have become the catalyst for change, thanks to the government's support in incubation and seed funding for innovative ideas. This newfound support system is nurturing a culture of entrepreneurship and innovation, providing new opportunities for the young minds of the Union Territory.

Building an Ecosystem for Innovation

A thriving ecosystem for innovation and startups is being meticulously crafted in Jammu and Kashmir. The government's vision of self-reliance is driving the creation of Industry Innovation clusters, paving the way for a new generation of entrepreneurs who are eager to create jobs for others. These efforts are not going unnoticed, as India is now ranked third globally in terms of innovation and startups, only trailing behind the US and China.

Jammu and Kashmir is emerging as a startup hub within India, and the synergy between the industry and academic institutions is fostering a culture of innovation. Budding innovators and researchers are receiving institutionalized support to turn their ideas into reality.

Exploring Opportunities Across Sectors

The government's commitment to exploring startup potential spans across various sectors, from agriculture and dairy to transport, handicrafts, food, and more. This inclusive approach ensures that no sector is left untouched, creating a diverse and vibrant startup landscape.

The Jammu and Kashmir Entrepreneurship Development Institute (JKEDI) has played a pivotal role in nurturing this startup ecosystem. By fostering an entrepreneurial culture and supporting innovation, JKEDI is empowering young entrepreneurs to dream big and challenge traditional norms.

From Graduates to Startup Founders

In 'Naya Jammu and Kashmir,' recent graduates from top institutions no longer feel compelled to settle for jobs at established companies or pursue further education abroad. Today, even individuals with minimal support can chase their entrepreneurial dreams if they possess technical skills and a compelling idea.

The Jammu and Kashmir Startup policy offers a comprehensive package of benefits, including office space, monthly allowances, research assistance, energy support, tax incentives for international patents, infrastructure backing, access to global markets, financing options, and academic guidance.

Success Stories

In a remarkably short span of time, startups like 'FastBeetle' have become household names in Jammu and Kashmir. With 70,000 users across the region, FastBeetle has revolutionized parcel delivery using motorbikes. The founders, Sheikh Samiullah and Abid Rashid, are now among the most successful entrepreneurs in Kashmir, even providing last-mile delivery for Amazon and serving Walmart-owned Flipkart. 'Downtown Cafe,' founded by brothers Suhail and Nadeem, has become a beloved spot for locals and tourists alike. Located in Srinagar's old city, this cafe offers a taste of Indian culture and tradition, setting it apart from the western-style cafes that dominate the scene.

Another standout is 'Gatoes,' led by Jibril Gulzar, which delivers food and groceries to homes across Kashmir. 'Gatoes' turned over a million dollars in its first seven months of operation and onboarded over 1450 merchant partners, making it by far the largest startup out of Jammu and Kashmir.

The lavender cultivation has changed the lives of many farmers, and it is heartening to note that Prime Minister of India, Shri Narendra Modi, in the 99th Edition of Mann ki Baat, appreciated the efforts of the Council of Scientific & Industrial Research-Indian Institute of Integrative Medicine (CSIR-IIIM) in supporting farmers in the cultivation of Lavender in Baderwah, Doda district, J&K under CSIR-Aroma Mission. He said, "Farmers had been engaged in traditional maize cultivation for decades, but some farmers thought of doing something different. They turned to floriculture, that is, the cultivation of flowers. Today, around two and a half thousand farmers are cultivating Lavender here. They have also been hand-held through the Aroma Mission of the Central Government. This new cultivation has greatly increased the income of the farmers."

Duggar Haat :

In March 2021, the Umeed scheme, a collaboration between JKRLM and District Administration Reasi, ignited a culinary revolution in Pouni Block of Reasi. Self Help Group (SHG) women turned their kitchen skills into a thriving enterprise called "Dogra Haat." With support, they honed their culinary talents, learned business basics, and mastered social media promotion. JAMMU: The Border Roads Organisation on Wednesday achieved a breakthrough of the 260-metre Kandi tunnel along the Jammu-Poonch national highway, a defence spokesperson said.

The tunnel work, which commenced in March, has seen remarkable progress despite facing adverse weather conditions, including heavy rainfall and landslides along the entire road stretch, the spokesperson said.

He said the first of the four tunnels has achieved its breakthrough, a significant milestone in the ongoing project 'Smart City' on the Akhnoor-Poonch highway (NH 144A), which came ahead of the schedule, demonstrating the exceptional expertise and determination of the BRO.

The spokesperson said the crucial project has been divided into eight packages, and the BRO is making remarkable progress in enhancing the horizontal and vertical profile of the road.

Chief Engineer Project Sampark, Brigadier Tejpal Singh was present to witness this momentous occasion.

"Package 1 is expected to be completed by June next year. Once completed, this tunnel will reduce the length of the road by 2.5 kilometres, improving connectivity and facilitating more efficient travel between Akhnoor and Poonch," the spokesperson said.

Additionally, he said this tunnel will play a vital role in enhancing strategic connectivity for the armed forces, enabling smoother and more expedient movement from Jammu to Poonch.

"The BRO is committed to the timely and successful execution of all projects undertaken, and this achievement is a testament to its dedication to improving transportation infrastructure and serving the nation," the spokesperson said.

Scores of artists from various places are engaged in giving the city a major facelift by creating 3D pictures, murals and paintings on flyovers, bridges, roundabouts, and building walls in the city.

Artist Sachin Dev, who has come here from Delhi for the project, told PTI, "The beautification work is being carried out in a year-long tender of the Jammu smart city project. We are covering most of the regions of Jammu. It will take one month to complete the project."

Law Commission meets Kovind panel on simultaneous polls; give detailed presentation

New Delhi: The Law Commission is learnt to have suggested a roadmap that includes changes required in the Constitution for holding simultaneous elections before a high-level committee headed by former president Ram Nath Kovind.

While the law ministry had asked the law panel to study the feasibility on holding Lok Sabha and assembly polls together, the Kovind panel on 'one nation, one election' has been mandated to examine the possibility of holding Lok Sabha, assembly and panchayat and municipality polls together.

Sources said the report of the law panel on simultaneous polls is not yet finalised.

They said "some more things are required to be done", indicating that the law panel will be invited again by the high-level committee.

According to an official statement, the high-level committee "noted" the resignation of Adhir Ranjan Choudhury, leader of the single largest party in the Lok Sabha, from the membership of the committee.

The day the panel was constituted, Choudhury had declined to be a part of it.

"I have no hesitation whatsoever in declining to serve on the committee whose terms of reference have been prepared in a manner to guarantee its conclusions. It is, I am afraid, a total eyewash," he had said in his letter to Home Minister Amit Shah, a member of the panel.

According to the statement, the Law Commission made a presentation during the meeting elaborating their suggestions and viewpoints on the issue of simultaneous elections in the country.

The panel had invited the Law Commission to seek its views on how simultaneous polls can be held in the country.

The committee, which had in its first meeting recently decided to seek views of political parties, has now written to them to elicit their views on holding sustainable simultaneous polls in the country. In a communication to the parties, it has sought an interaction with them on a "mutually agreed date", sources said citing the letter.

They said parties have also been given an option to send their views in writing in the next three months.

The statement said letters have been sent to six National parties, 33 State parties and seven registered unrecognised parties inviting their suggestions on One Nation One Election.

The Law Commission is working on a formula to synchronise all assembly polls by extending or reducing the tenure so that these elections can be held along with the Lok Sabha polls 2029 onwards.

The law panel is devising a mechanism to ensure a common electoral roll for Lok Sabha, assemblies and local bodies to reduce cost and use of manpower for undertaking an almost identical exercise which is carried out now by the Election Commission and various state election commissions.

"Will Contest Polls": Madhya Pradesh Bureaucrat Who Quit After Leave Denied

Bhopal (Madhya Pradesh): A former Deputy Collector Nisha Bangre, whose resignation was accepted recently, has said that she will definitely contest the forthcoming state assembly elections.

The state government accepted the resignation of Ms Bangre, who was posted as Dy Collector in Chhatarpur district, on Monday (October 23).

She resigned from her post on June 22 this year citing that she did not get permission to attend the inauguration of her newly constructed house from the state government.

After the state government accepted her resignation, Ms Bangre on Wednesday told ANI, "I will definitely contest the election. I want to be a part of democracy - becoming an MLA is a part of it. I will definitely file my nomination."

When questioned about political motive behind her resignation from the civil service Ms Bangre said she has already specified her reasons to leaving.

"I had already explained in detail that at the time of my resignation that I was not granted permission to participate in the inauguration of my house. After that when I found out in these two-three months, I came to know that all this is happening due to political action. I always want a good system to be maintained in this country. The systems are made by the officers and our public representatives," she said.

The former officer further added, "After being an officer, I saw that if the political intent is good then officers can also do good work. So, I decided that now I will become an MLA and we will fight against what has happened to me so that such injustice does not happen to anyone else. So all this has happened gradually and today I am ready to contest the elections."

Meanwhile, when asked about whether she had spoken with any party for a ticket, Ms Bangre said that Congress was standing with her during her struggle and they had assured her that they would wait for her resignation. Therefore, she would meet state Congress chief Kamal Nath and ask him about his stand.

"When my struggle was going on, Congress spoke about standing with me. When I was arrested, Congress leaders were with me. They had assured me that they would wait for my resignation. So, I would like to meet Kamal Nath today and ask him about his stand as now my resignation has been accepted, today I am free to fight for the people's right," she said. When questioned about the possibility of not being given a ticket Ms Bangre said she would continue to work in public service.

"I will work for the public. If the public says to contest as an independent or to contest with some other party, then I have no problem. As the public says, I will follow their order," she added.

Madhya Pradesh will undergo assembly polls on November 17 and the counting will take place on December 3. Through the polls, the state will elect legislators from 230 Assembly constituencies.

Man gets one-year imprisonment for theft from govt agency in Ladakh

Kargil: A local court in Ladakh's Kargil district on Wednesday sentenced a man to one-year imprisonment for theft from a government-run agency, officials said.

The court of Judicial Magistrate Sankoo presided over by Shafiq Mushtaq Lone found Ghulam Ali, a resident of Goma village, guilty of criminal trespass and stealing of batteries installed at the headquarters of Kargil Renewable Energy Development Authority (KREDA) in 2019, an official said.

The convict was sentenced to undergo imprisonment for one year under Section 457 (lurking house-trespass or house-breaking by night to commit offence punishable with imprisonment) of the Indian Penal Code and another term of one year under Section 380 (theft in dwelling house), the official added.

However, the court said the sentence of imprisonment would run concurrently, the official said, adding that the court also imposed a fine of Rs 20,000 on Ali.

7 held for raising pro-Pakistan slogans during 'jagran' in UP's Basti

Basti (UP): Six people, including two women, have been arrested for allegedly raising pro-Pakistan slogans during a 'jagran', a programme dedicated to Goddess Durga, at a village in this district, police said on Wednesday.

A 15-year-old girl has also been detained in the incident which took place on Monday in Chauri village under the Parsurampur police station area, they said.

According to a complaint lodged by village head Ashish, the 'jagran' was being held on Monday evening when the girl came on the stage where idols of gods and goddesses were kept and started raising anti-India slogans.

"At around 11 pm, under a planned way, the girl (daughter of Suggan Ali) climbed the stage, threw a black cloth towards the idols, and started chanting slogans 'Islam zindabad', 'Pakistan zindabad' and 'Hindustan murdabad'. Her sister Sahiba and three brothers supported her. Her father Suggan Ali, mother Sahabuddin Nisha, along with Mohd Shami and Mohd Zakir Ali, also supported her," Ashish alleged in his complaint.

He further said that this act hurt the sentiments of the people who had gathered for the 'jagran' event. "When they were asked not to indulge in such acts, they threatened the Hindu community of dire consequences and also of riot," the village head said.

Based on the complaint, police registered a case on Tuesday against the girl, her sister Sahiba (18), three brothers including Arman (19), parents Suggan Ali (48) and Sahabuddin Nisha (42), and Mohd Shami (55) and Mohd Zakir Ali (50) under sections 153B (imputation, assertions prejudicial to national-integration) and 506 (criminal intimidation) of the IPC, Basti Additional Superintendent of Police Deependra Nath Chaudhary said.

Police have detained the girl, while her two minor brothers aged 10 and 8 years were let off, he said, adding her parents, one sister, one brother and two others have been arrested.

Chaudhary said that the CCTV footage of the programme is being examined, and a police team has been formed to probe the incident.

He added that a PAC unit has been deployed in the village.

'Petrol bomb' hurled outside TN Raj Bhavan's main gate, police rule out security lapse Chennai: A Molotov cocktail, called 'petrol bomb' in local parlance, was lobbed by a man in front of the Raj Bhavan's main gate here on Wednesday, an incident which drew the opposition's ire over the handling of law and order by the ruling DMK in Tamil Nadu.

Opposition AIADMK and BJP slammed the government over the incident that happened outside the official residence of the State Governor.

There was no damage, injuries to anyone and there was no security lapse, a senior police official said, adding the man who threw the petrol bomb was immediately overpowered. He was identified as 'Karukka' Vinoth, a man with many pending cases against him.

On Sardar Patel Road, on the opposite side of the Raj Bhavan, the man tried to throw a bottle by around 3 PM and it was immediately noticed by policemen on duty near the main gate, Prem Anand Sinha.

Additional Commissioner of Police (South), told reporters here.

While alert police personnel were apprehending him, the man hurled the bottle which landed in front of the barricade placed before the main gate of the Raj Bhavan and there was no damage and no one was injured. "There was no fire...there was some flame only on the wick, the bottle fell down and broke. He was caught and he had some more bottles and these were seized,"

'Karukka' Vinoth, aged 42, faces 14 criminal cases and he was out on bail recently. He is a resident of Teynampet here, a City Police release said.

Vinoth was the accused in two similar incidents, including the one targeting the BJP office here over a year ago.

Within the past one week, he was freed from jail after he secured bail. Before the incident on Wednesday, he consumed liquor and he is being questioned on his motive, Sinha said.

"Only one petrol bomb was used; it did not create any impact the way the accused expected," he said and ruled out any security lapse.

A case has been registered and the accused was remanded in custody.

Asked if he had any idea about the Governor's 'movement' outside of the Raj Bhavan and whether he had come prepared anticipating any such thing, the official said 'it does not appear to be so.'

Opposition parties strongly condemned the incident and criticised the government over 'deterioration' of law and order.

Leader of Opposition and AIADMK chief, Edappadi K Palaniswami said a scenario of 'insecurity' prevailed for the Raj Bhavan itself, meant to be a high-security campus. Expressing shock, he said the incident illustrated 'deterioration' of law and order in Tamil Nadu.

Former chief minister O Panneerselvam also blamed the alleged deterioration of law and order. VK Sasikala, confidante of late chief minister J Jayalithaa said the incident was tantamount to intimidating the Governor.

BJP state president K Annamalai said on X: "Incidentally, it is the same person who attacked @BJP4TamilNadu headquarters in Chennai in Feb 2022, is held responsible for the attack on Raj Bhavan today," he added.

spokesperson said. He said that the situation in the Middle East was deliberated and various contingency scenarios dwelled on.

"The nuances of security in the region in relation to the onset of the winter season also came up for discussion," the spokesperson added.

Ex-Guv Suggests

Kashmir and that attacks are being witnessed in areas like Rajouri and higher reaches of the valley. The video was shared by Gandhi on his social media channel.

"My opinion about Jammu and Kashmir is that you cannot keep it calm with the help of security forces and I suggest winning the hearts of the people of that place and after that you can do anything. The people over there are amiable," Malik said.

He said that abrogation of Article 370 had not hurt the people as much as depriving them of statehood had.

"Now I only wish that the statehood should be restored and elections are held. After all this was the assurance made by (Union Home Minister) Amit Shah on the floor of the house," Malik said.

Gandhi added here that during his Bharat Jodo Yatra he found people in Jammu more hurt by the fact that the state had been "demoted" to a union territory.

Malik further said he had asked many a time to the Centre about restoration of statehood but the response often given was that when everything is going fine, what is the need?

When asked by Gandhi about his views on the Pulwama attack of 2019, Malik said, "I have never said that those in power at that time were responsible for the attack but they used the attack for their political gains."

As many as 40 CRPF personnel were killed when a terrorist rammed his explosive laden car into their bus near Pulwama on the national highway between Jammu and Srinagar on February 14, 2019.

"I was asked not to comment on this at that time because I advocated that some heads should roll after the incident," Malik recalled. Asked by Gandhi as to how so much explosives could come, he said, "It came from Pakistan" but was never detected.

Gandhi also spoke about the representation from Other Backward Class, Dalit or tribal community in the media fraternity to which Malik said there has to be a quota in the media industry.

Asked about his experience in the Northeast as the governor of Meghalaya, especially in the backdrop of the ethnic conflict in Manipur, Malik said, "In Manipur, it is a total failure of the government. The CM is not doing anything and he is not being removed also."

Gandhi claimed that during his visit to Manipur, he had found that the state had been divided into two parts.

To a question by the Congress leader whether the country stands divided by two ideologies today -- RSS and Gandhivadi, Malik said India will survive only when the country moves ahead with the ideology of liberal Hinduism.

"Gandhiji had also said this. No one understood this country better than Gandhi ji," he said.

"Without liberal Hinduism, the country will not survive but will disintegrate. Everyone has to live peacefully with unity," he added.

Providing Social Security

Integrated Social Security Scheme and disbursement of pension up to the month of September among the beneficiaries.

The administration, he said, is committed to reaching out to all those who are needy and Integrated Social Security Scheme is a demand-driven scheme without any restriction.

"More than 44,000 elderly, widows and divorcees have been covered in Srinagar and if required the benefits will be enhanced further," Sinha said.

He impressed on the District Officials across the UT to replicate the best practices of the Srinagar district administration and make necessary technological interventions for speedy saturation of the Social Security Schemes.

"The effective social security net to the last man in the queue will strengthen the society and improve the living conditions of urban poor and destitute," he said.

At Pensioners Sammelan, the LG assured all necessary support and assistance from the administration to the widow and divorcee pensioners and persons with disabilities in their self-employment ventures.

He also highlighted the efforts of his administration in extending universal health insurance coverage and ensuring greater security and quality life to all.

"Jammu Kashmir is the only region in the country where eligible age for widow pension is 18 years. The administration has notified the rules of Maintenance and Welfare of Parents and Senior Citizens Act and also established a helpline for their proper care," he said.

"Today, Panchayats in Jammu Kashmir have Senior Citizen Clubs. Apart from this, Senior Citizen Homes have been established in 13 districts and the remaining districts will be covered this year," he added.

The LG handed over the sanction letters and medical aids to the beneficiaries and also enquired about the seamless access to the benefits under various other social welfare schemes.

Beneficiaries shared their views on the simplified process for extension of benefits under Social Security Schemes.

Vijay Kumar, ADGP Kashmir; Vijay Kumar Bidhuri, Divisional Commissioner Kashmir; Athar Amir Khan, Commissioner SMC; Mohammad Aijaz, Deputy Commissioner Srinagar, senior officers and beneficiaries were present.

England Play Sri Lanka In Crucial ODI World Cup Game

Press Trust of India

BENGALURU: England will get a chance, perhaps a final one, to drag their shipwreck of a World Cup campaign, marked by batting and bowling downtime, to less stormy shores when they face fellow strugglers Sri Lanka here on Thursday.

The defending champions have two points from four matches, similar to their opponents, and are ninth on the table. A win here will not push them too far ahead on the chart, but it may give them that tiny bit of motivation against teams like India and Australia ahead. But a defeat against Lanka will take away even the benevolence of mathematics, which is currently scaffolding their hopes.

To avoid being in the proximity of an early exit, England need improvement through the order, and in particular their batters need to fire. For that, they will not get a more favourable venue than the M Chinnaswamy Stadium with its short boundaries and pitch aiding runs.

The last match here between Australia and Pakistan produced a combined 672 runs, and the England batters would desperately want to repeat their effort against Bangladesh on October 10 when they mustered 364 for 9 at Dharamsala.

It has been their bane during this tournament as none of their batters, barring Dawid Malan and Joe Root to a lesser extent, have been able to find their range, a defeat against Afghanistan and the mauling by South Africa still play out like the reels of a bad dream.

There was so much riding on the likes of captain Jos Buttler, Harry Brook, Sam Curran, Moeen Ali, Chris Woakes and Liam Livingstone but none of them have delivered.

Among them the malfunctioning of their all-rounders might have been the most disappointing as they were central to England's bull run in white ball cricket.

Australia Drub The Dutch After Maxwell Mayhem

Agencies

NEW DELHI: Glenn Maxwell smashed the fastest hundred in the history of the 50-overs World Cup as Australia thrashed the Netherlands by 309 runs in what was their third successive win of the tournament on Wednesday.

Eighteen days after South Africa's Aiden Markram smashed a 49-ball hundred at the same Arun Jaitley Stadium against Sri Lanka, Maxwell took nine balls fewer to bring up his century.

The all-rounder produced a blistering 106 off 44 balls and opener David Warner made 104 as Australia racked up 399-8 after electing to bat. The five-time champions then returned to bundle out their opponents for 90 in 21 overs, subjecting the Dutch to the biggest defeat in the tournament's history.

Earlier with Travis Head continuing his recovery from a fractured hand, Mitchell Marsh retained his place as Warner's opening partner but did not last long. The Netherlands began with spin from both ends and Warner smashed Aryan Dutt for four fours in a row to signal his intention early.

to a 91-ball hundred, his second successive ton in the tournament, and took off his helmet and leapt in his trademark celebration. Logan van Beek (4-74) removed Warner soon after but Steve Smith (71) and Marnus Labuschagne (62) helped themselves to easy half-centuries.

The Dutch bowlers briefly stemmed the run flow but the ground had been laid for Maxwell to explode with the bat. The all-rounder toyed with the Dutch attack smacking nine fours and eight sixes in his clattering innings.

He was particularly harsh on de Leede, who bled 115 runs in his 10 overs - the most by a bowler in a men's ODI. It included 28 runs in de Leede's final over alone. With Maxwell playing some outrageous shots on either side of the wicket, Australia plundered 131 runs in the final 10 overs.

It left the Netherlands with a mountain to climb and they faltered early in their chase losing both the openers inside six overs. Adam Zampa then ran through their lower order to claim three for eight runs to hasten their collapse.

Shubman Gill 6 Points Behind Babar Azam In Race For No. 1 ODI Batter

Press Trust of India

DUBAI: Young Indian opener Shubman Gill closed the gap with Pakistan skipper Babar Azam by just six points as the No 1 ODI batter in the ICC rankings that was released on Wednesday.

The 24-year-old, who became the fastest batter to reach 2000 ODI runs in their World Cup match against New Zealand on Sunday, has improved to 823 ratings points.

Babar on the other hand has dropped to a total of 829 rating point despite having amassed 157 runs from five innings so far at the World Cup, with his most recent effort a fighting 74 in a losing side against Afghanistan in Chennai.

Having missed India's first two World Cup because of dengue, Gill has 95 runs from just three matches which includes a standout innings of 53 in their seven-wicket win over Bangladesh in Pune.

Star batter Virat Kohli, who is the second leading run-getter in the World Cup with 354 runs after five matches, has improved three spots to be on joint fifth spot with Aussie left-handed opener David Warner (up two spots).

Fresh from hitting three centuries from five matches, South African wicketkeeper-batter Quinton de Kock finds himself within striking distance in third place.

South Africa teammate Heinrich Klaasen has improved seven places to be in fourth spot with a new career-high rating.

Mohammed Siraj jumps to No 2 spot

India quick Mohammed Siraj, who has picked up six wickets from five appearances at the World Cup, jumped one place to close in on Australia seamer Josh Hazlewood as the No 1 ODI bowler.

South Africa's left-arm spinner Keshav Maharaj rose two places to third and a new career-high rating following his seven wickets at the tournament thus far.

Afghanistan veteran Mohammad Nabi (up four places to sixth) and Australia tweeker Adam Zampa (up four places to seventh) also made ground inside the top-10.

Bangladesh captain Shakib Al Hasan remained out in front of the ODI rankings for all-rounders, with South Africa beanpole Marco Jansen the biggest mover with the in-form No.7 jumping 23 places on this list to share 11th place alongside Scotland's Michael Leask.

England's Maguire, Kane & Bellingham Shine In Champions League

The Associated Press

ROME: On a night of tributes for the late Bobby Charlton, Harry Maguire kept Manchester United in contention and fellow England standouts Harry Kane and Jude Bellingham each scored in the Champions League.

A second-half header from Maguire and then a penalty saved by Andre Onana in stoppage time secured a 1-0 win for United over FC Copenhagen to earn the English club its first points following consecutive losses.

Kane produced the crucial goal to help Bayern Munich earn its 16th straight win in the group stage with a 3-1 victory over Galatasaray, and Bellingham scored with a long-range shot for Real Madrid's second in a 2-1 win at Braga on Tuesday.

Charlton, the former England and Manchester United star, died Saturday at age 86. In United's first home match since his death, a lone piper playing the tune to the United anthem "We'll Never Die" provided a moving soundtrack inside Old Trafford.

The piper led out United manager Erik ten Hag, Charlton's former teammate Alex Stepney, and United youth-team captain Dan Gore onto the field ahead of United's match against FC Copenhagen. They laid a wreath in the center circle before a minute of silence was observed.

Another rendition of "There's only one Bobby Charlton" then swirled around the stadium to applause as fans paid their respects to one of England's World Cup winners from 1966 who is widely considered United's greatest player.

GROUP A
Bayern leads Group A with a perfect nine points at the halfway stage and hasn't dropped a point in group play since 2020.

Galatasaray is next with four points, United has three and Copenhagen has one.

Kane made little impact until late in the second half for Bayern's second goal. The England captain first tried a flashy backheel off Jamal Musiala's low cross but the ball hit defender Sacha Boey. It then bounced favorably for Kane to score with his second effort in the 73rd.

Musiala then scored Bayern's third.

Kingsley Coman had scored early for Bayern but the German team was under pressure from Galatasaray for much of the game.

In Manchester, Maguire had been criticized for his recent performances and he celebrated his goal emphatically and then formed a heart with his fingers.

GROUP B
Goals from Gabriel Martinelli and Gabriel Jesus earned Arsenal a 2-1 win at Europa League champion Sevilla.

Martinelli has now scored in his first start for Arsenal in the Champions League, the Europa League (vs. Standard Liege), Premier League (vs. West Ham) and League Cup (vs. Nottingham Forest).

Lens and PSV Eindhoven drew 1-1 with Johan Bakayoko and Elye Wahi trading goals.

Arsenal leads the group with six points, followed by Lens (5), Sevilla (2) and PSV (2).

GROUP C
Bellingham scored his 11th goal in 12 matches since joining Madrid to help the 14-time European champion strengthen its lead in Group C.

Madrid has a full nine points. Napoli is next with six points after a 1-0 win at Union Berlin; Braga has three points and Berlin has none.

Rodrygo also scored for Madrid, which is trying to make it to the knockout rounds for the 28th consecutive time.

Giacomo Raspadori filled in for the injured Victor Osimhen at center forward and scored in Napoli's victory.

Strong work from Khvicha Kvaratskhelia meant that Raspadori needed only one touch to redirect a pass from the Georgia dribbling wizard.

GROUP D
Brais Mendez scored again as Real Sociedad defeated Benfica 1-0 in Lisbon to hand last season's quarterfinalist a third straight defeat.

Surprise starter Alexis Sanchez set Inter Milan on its way to a 2-1 victory over Salzburg to boost the Nerazzurri's chances of reaching the knockout stages.

Sanchez scored in the 19th minute for the veteran forward's first goal since returning to the club in the offseason. Oscar Gloukh briefly leveled for Salzburg but Hakan Calhanoglu scored what proved to be the winner from the penalty spot in the 64th minute.

Real Sociedad and Inter each have seven points to top the group. Salzburg is next with three points and Benfica has none.

"Graduate Wife Cannot Be Compelled To Work": High Court Awards Maintenance

Agenceis

New Delhi: Merely because the wife is a graduate, she cannot be compelled to work and it cannot be presumed that she is intentionally not working to claim maintenance from her estranged husband, the Delhi High Court has said.

The court's observation came while dealing with a plea by a man seeking a reduction in interim maintenance payable to his wife from 25,000 per month to 15,000 per month on the ground that she has a B.Sc degree.

A bench headed by Justice Suresh Kumar Kait observed that there was no denial that the wife was a graduate, but she was never gainfully employed and there was no reason to interfere with the interim maintenance set by the family court. "No inference can be drawn that merely because the wife is holding a degree of graduation, she must be compelled to work. It can also not be presumed that she is intentionally not working solely with an intent to claim interim maintenance from the husband," said the bench, also comprising Justice Neena Bansal Krishna, in a recent order. The court also refused to enhance the maintenance amount on the wife's plea, saying no ground was made out by her and the family court had reasonably considered her and their son's expenditure.

The court, however, set aside the penalty of 1,000 per day on the delayed payment of interim maintenance by the husband and directed that interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum be paid to the wife for the delayed payment of interim maintenance.

It also set aside the penalty of 550 per day imposed on delay in payment of litigation costs.

Man Gets Postal Job After 28-Year Wait Following Supreme Court Order

New Delhi: Twenty-eight years after a man applied for a job in the postal department, the Supreme Court has ordered his appointment noting that there was an error in holding him ineligible for the post. Ankur Gupta had applied for the post of postal assistant in 1995. After being selected for pre-induction training, he was later excluded from the merit list on the ground that he completed intermediate education from the "vocational stream".

Gupta along with other unsuccessful candidates moved the Central Administrative Tribunal which ruled in their favour in 1999. The postal department challenged the tribunal's order and approached the Allahabad High Court in 2000. The high court dismissed the petition in 2017 and upheld the CAT's order. A review was filed in the high court which was also dismissed in 2021, following which the department approached the Supreme Court.

In the top court, a bench of justices Bela M Trivedi and Dipankar Datta said a candidate cannot claim a vested right to appointment, once he is included in the merit list, he has a limited right of being accorded a fair treatment. "However, if the candidature is not rejected at the threshold and the candidate is allowed to participate in the selection process and ultimately his name figures in the merit list though such candidate has no indefeasible right to claim appointment, he does have a limited right of being accorded fair and non-discriminatory treatment," the bench said.

Judge Apologises To Colleague After Snapping At Her In Gujarat High Court

Agenceis

Ahmedabad: Two days after a viral video showed a senior judge of the Gujarat High Court snapping at his colleague on the bench in an open court following disagreement over a matter, the former began the court session on Wednesday by apologising to her over the episode.

Justice Biren Vaishnav said he was sorry for what happened in the court on Monday.

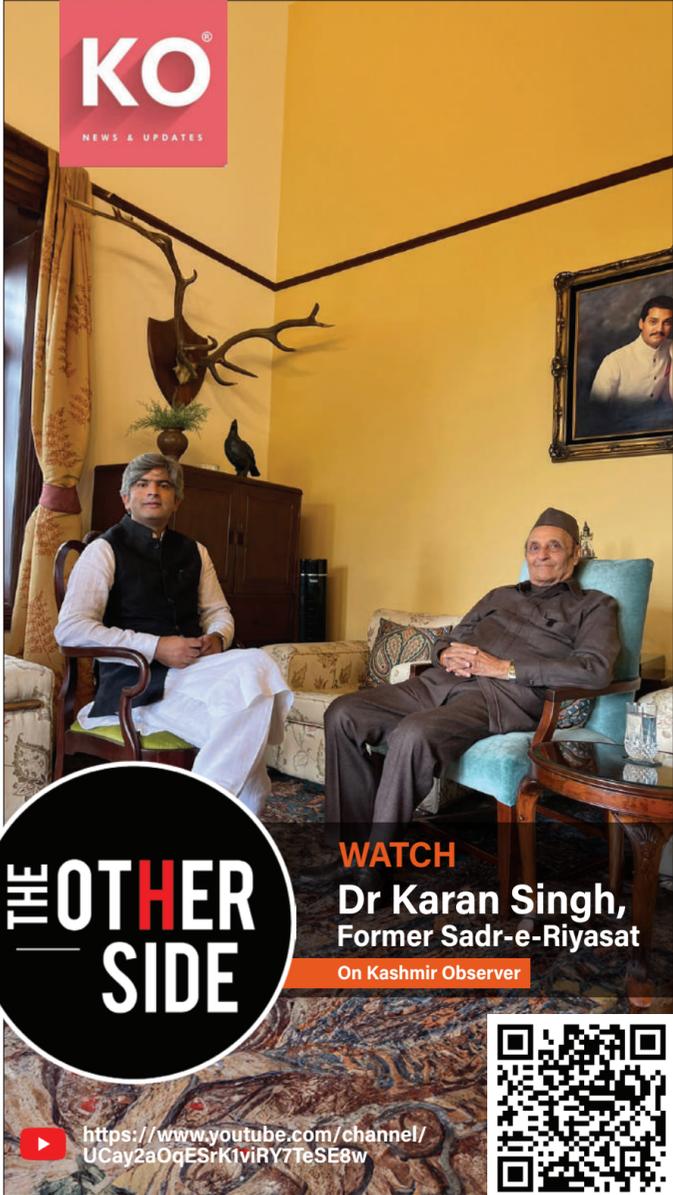

The court was closed on Tuesday on account of Dussehra.

Justice Vaishnav, the senior judge on the bench had a heated exchange of words with puisne judge Justice Mauna Bhatt on October 23. The incident took place while Justice Vaishnav was passing an order in a matter and Justice Bhatt did not agree with it.

"What happened on Monday shouldn't have happened. I was wrong. I am sorry for that, and we begin a new session," Justice Vaishnav said as soon as the session began, in the presence of Justice Mauna Bhatt who is part of the division bench.

While the video of the Monday session of the division bench of Justices Vaishnav and Bhatt was pulled down from the official YouTube page of the Gujarat High Court, a purported video of the incident circulating on social media showed Justice Bhatt murmuring something to Justice Vaishnav when he was passing the order.
