Kashmir Saffron Growers 12 Year Wait For Sprinkler Irrigation System Affects Yield

Parvaiz Bhat

xpressing mixed feelings about the saffron yield this year, the growers in the South Kashmir's Pampore say that even the much hyped multi-billion rupees National Mission on Saffron (NMS) being implemented since 2010 in Kashmir has not ensured a reliable irrigation system for their fields which plays a crucial role in saffron productivity. The Rs 4.1billion NMS, launched in 2010 to rejuvenate saffron cultivation in Kashmir by helping counter erratic rainfall among other challenges, has yet to ensure a reliable sprinkler irrigation for saffron crop, the most basic requirement for their crop, farmers complained.

Putting in place sprinkler irrigation in saffron fields, which have traditionally depended on rain, was a key objective of NMS. The NMS was due to end in 2016, but has since been extended, though most of the works under this mission have been completed according to the officials of agriculture and irrigation departments. Saffron farmers, who grow

PDD To Snap Lines, Slap Cases Against Defaulters

Under No Circumstances Should J&K Engage In Overdrawal Of Power: Principal Secretary

Auqib Javeed

Srinagar: Facing flak for frequent and unscheduled power cuts in Kashmir Valley, the Power Development Department (PDD) on Monday announced to disconnect electricity supply and file criminal cases against all those consumers who haven't paid their power bills and have 'willfully defaulted'.

"We will take tough action against all the defaulters who have not paid their electricity bills to the department. Their lines will be disconnected and criminal cases will be filed against them," Principal Secretary of Power Development Department (PDD) H Rajesh Prasad told Kashmir Observer. PDD, he said, wants to purchase additional electricity from other states but the lack of funds was making it difficult.

"The revenue generation is very poor, leading to constraints on the budget," he added.

Earlier, chairing a meeting with the Managing Directors of Corporations and all Chief Engineers and senior officers of the department here to review the power supply position in J&K, particularly Kashmir valley, Prasad asked the engineers to strictly follow the schedule, emphasizing that no unscheduled power cuts shall be tolerated, an official spokesperson said.

During the review, he said, it was informed that a curtailment schedule has been prepared based on the power availability in the region. More on P10

'123456' The Most Common Password, Can Be Cracked In Under A Second: Study

Press Trust Of India

he most common password was "123456" and a hacker would probably take less than a second to crack it, according to a study conducted by NordPass, a software company that helps users organise their passwords.

The password "123456" was held by about 45 lakhs accounts, the study found in partnership with independent experts specialising in researching cybersecurity incidents, according to the Panama-based company's website.

The second and the third most popular passwords were "admin" and "12345678", used in about 40 lakhs and 13.7 lakhs accounts, respectively, the study findings on the website show.

In India, the most common password was "123456", kept in around 3.6 lakhs accounts, followed by "admin", used in around 1.2 lakhs accounts, according to the website.

The research team analysed passwords from a 6.6 Terabyte-database, which were stolen by employing various stealer malware, such as Redline, Vidar, Taurus, Raccoon, Azorult, and Cryptbot, it said.

Malware logs included both passwords and the source website and the researchers' database included data from up to 35 countries.

The researchers classified the data into various verticals, which allowed them to perform a statistical analysis based on countries, NordPass's website said.

NordPass exclusively received only credentials to secure accounts on this platform category.

The website also acknowledged "123456" to be the "world's worst password" as it was ranked the most common password 4 out of 5 times, while "Password" held this title once throughout the lifetime of the study.

NordPass quoted the researchers while saying that "while passwords are getting harder to breach due to rapidly evolving technologies, malware attacks are still seen as a prominent threat for account security."

The password manager company advised account holders to use complex passwords that were at least 20 characters long and included a mix of uppercase and lowercase letters, numbers and special symbols.

NordPass also asked password users to desist from reusing the same password across multiple websites or services, as compromising one account could risk the safety of all the other accounts.

Further, it called for a "regular" assessment of the passwords for their health and improving them for a "safer online experience", in addition to advocating the use of password managers such as itself.

Indian rescuers are battling to free 41 men trapped in a road tunnel for nine days as they prepare to dig an entirely new shaft after previous efforts failed.

Excavators on Monday were removing earth, concrete and rubble from the site of the under-construction tunnel in the northern Himalayan state of Uttarakhand that collapsed on November 12.

The trapped workers have access to light, and supplies of oxygen, dry food, water and medicines are being sent via a pipe. At least three workers have complained of dysentery, officials said.

The authorities are now trying to send cooked food and set up a phone connection for them through a second, 6-inch (15cm) pipeline being drilled into the debris, with 42 metres (138 feet) out of an estimated 60 metres (200 feet) already completed, said Bhaskar Khulbe, officer on special duty for the tunnel project.

"Our priority is to save 41 lives who are trapped inside the tunnel. Through this [pipeline], we will be able to send necessary things to them," Road Transport Minister Nitin Gadkari told reporters on Sunday.

Officials are also considering setting up an optical fibre connection through this pipeline, Gadkari added, which can be used to insert a camera or phone connection into the tunnel to help workers speak to their families.

But rescue efforts have been slowed by falling debris as well as repeated breakdowns of

Yemen's Houthi's Seize Israeli-Linked Ship In Red Sea; Capture 25 Crew Members

JERUSALEM: Yemen's Houthi militia seized an Israeli-linked cargo ship in a crucial Red Sea shipping route on Sunday and took its 25 crew members hostage, officials said, raising fears that regional tensions heightened over the Israel-Hamas war were playing out on a new maritime front.

The Iran-backed Houthi's who control over seventy percent of Yemen said they seized the ship over its connection to Israel and would continue to target ships in international waters that were linked to or owned by Israelis until the end of Israel's campaign against Gaza's Hamas rulers.

"All ships belonging to the Israeli enemy or that deal with it will become legitimate targets," they said.

Mohammed Abdul-Salam, the Houthis' chief negotiator and spokesman, later added in an online statement that the Israelis only understand "the language of force".

"The detention of the Israeli ship is a practical step that proves the seriousness of the Yemeni armed forces in waging the sea battle, regardless of its costs and costs," he added. "This is the beginning."

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's office had blamed the Houthis for the attack on the Bahamas-flagged Galaxy Leader, a vehicle carrier affiliated with an Israeli billionaire. It said no Israelis were on board. The ship's Japanese operator, NYK Line, said the vessel had no cargo at the time of the

Gaza In Israeli Offensive

GAZA: The head of a prominent media institution in Gaza and two other journalists were killed during the weekend in Israel's offensive in the territory, their relatives said on Sunday, adding to the dozens of reporters who have died in the six-week conflict.

The New York-based Committee to Protect Journalists (CPJ) said the weekend deaths raised to 48 the number of journalists and media workers it had confirmed killed in the region since the Oct. 7 Hamas attack on Israel and the subsequent Israeli offensive. The CPJ, whose list covers journalists killed on both sides of the conflict although most have been in Gaza, said it seeks at least two sources to verify each death. It said its list of those killed comprised 43 Palestinians, four Israelis and one

"Journalists across the region are making great sacrifices to cover this heart-breaking conflict. Those in Gaza, in particular, have paid, and continue to pay, an unprecedented toll and face exponential threats," Sherif Mansour, CPJ's Middle East and North Africa program coordinator, said in an email to Reuters. On Sunday, Belal Jadallah, a journalist and head of the board of the Press House-Palestine, a non-governmental organization, was killed and his pharmacist brother-in-law was seriously wounded, his sister and other relatives told Reuters.

Jadallah told his sister earlier on Sunday he was heading out of Gaza City toward the south. He was killed in the Zeitoun area of Gaza City, said his sister, who added that people who found him and took him to a medical center where he was declared dead said he had been killed by an Israeli tank shell. Reuters could not independently verify this report or the report of the other two journalists killed this weekend.

Four of Jadallah's relatives work for Reuters in Gaza or abroad. One of the journalists on CPI's list of those killed is Reuters journalist Issam Abdallah who was killed in Lebanon near the border with Israel on Oct. 13.

In addition to Jadallah, two freelance journalists – Hassouna Sleem and Sary Mansour - were killed on Saturday in an Israeli assault on Bureij refugee camp, in the center of the Gaza Strip, their relatives and Palestinian health officials said. The health officials said 17 people died in the incident.

The Israeli military did not immediately respond to a request for comment about the deaths of Jadallah or the others. In the past, the Israeli military has said it was pursuing its offensive to dismantle Hamas after the Oct. 7 attack and it would look into individual cases at a later date. It has also said it makes every feasible effort to mitigate civilian harm.

The Press House-Palestine says on its website that its overall objective is to contribute to developing an "independent Palestinian media, that reflects the values of democracy and freedom of expression and its principles.'

KOLKATA: A case was filed against a senior police officer for allegedly creating a ruckus at the Kolkata airport when asked to pay for additional luggage he wanted to carry on a flight, officials said on Monday.

He was identified as Anirban Ray, a 1998-batch IPS officer who is at present posted as the Additional Director-General (Provisioning) with the West Bengal Police, they said.

He has been booked under IPC sections 323 (voluntarily causing hurt), 341 (wrongful restraint), 505 (causing public mischief) and 506 (criminal intimidation), Deputy Commissioner (Airport) of Bidhannagar City Police Aishwarya Sagar said.

The incident happened on Sunday afternoon. An FIR has already been lodged against him, and appropriate legal action has been initiated. An investigation has been started." she said.

Ray was supposed to take a flight to Delhi from the Kolkata airport, officials said.

According to the complaint, he misbehaved with the airport staff and created a ruckus after he was asked to pay for excess luggage, they said.

Following the incident, he was not allowed to board the flight and was escorted out of the airport, they added.

Israel did not immediately comment but pushed on with its withering air and ground campaign aimed at destroying Hamas over the October 7 attacks it says killed 1,200 people and saw 240 dragged off as hostages.

The latest reported blow to Gaza's devastated health sector came as hopes rose that 31 premature babies evacuated from another hospital, Al-Shifa, would be taken from a Gaza clinic to safety in Egypt through the Rafah crossing. Frantic diplomatic efforts were meanwhile underway to seal a deal for the release of some of the hostages. Mediator Qatar voiced hope on Sunday that an agreement was near. but Israel and Hamas have not yet reported that a deal is imminent.

The bloodiest ever Gaza war has reduced much of the coastal strip to rubble and seen Israeli troops raid, occupy and evacuate the biggest hospital, Al-Shifa, in recent days, which saw hundreds flee the area on foot toward southern Gaza.

Israel, backed by ally the United States, argues that Hamas has used vast tunnel networks below Al-Shifa for military purposes and showed recovered weaponry as proof, but was yet to reveal evidence of a major military headquarters below ground.

After another Gaza building was hit, in Deir al-Balah south of Gaza City on Sunday, rescuers searched through the debris for survivors and bodies, using the lights of their mobile phones in the rain.

"There are only children and women in the house and no one else," exclaimed one resident. "How can that give them (the Israeli army) an excuse to hit it? ... We don't have any equipment to pull people out from under the rubble.' Bodies on the road

Alarm has surged over the dire humanitarian situation as the war rages into a seventh week. The Israeli offensive has killed more than 13,000 people, including thousands of children, according to the Hamas-run government, fuelling mounting global pressure for a ceasefire.

The UN humanitarian agency OCHA has described a "collapse of services" at hospitals across northern Gaza, amid shortages of electricity, fuel and medical supplies.

Israeli officials have warned a "window of legitimacy" for the war to rout Hamas may be closing.

AI-Based System Introduced For Detecting TB Cases In Kashmir

'Sound Bank With Over 20,000 Sounds Created To Help Recognise TB Cases'

Agencies

SRINAGAR: Authorities in Kashmir have initiated Artificial Intelligence (AI) systems to detect potential tuberculosis cases to enhance surveillance and work towards making the

An official of the State Tuberculosis Office said that an artificial intelligence system has been started in districts that have been already tuberculosis-free to keep more surveillance and fully eradicate the disease. While AI algorithms can efficiently identify potential tuberculosis cases, the official recommended a comprehensive clinical examination and follow-up tests. He said the integration of AI reduces the number of patients requiring extensive tests, making resource allocation more efficient and cost-effective.

"This combined approach significantly reduces costs while enhancing the detection of TB cases. By screening patients in the community and detecting TB early, better outcomes are achieved, and shorter treatment courses become possible," the health official said, adding that early detection is crucial in limiting the spread of this highly contagious disease. The official added that the introduction of AI in tuberculosis diagnosis offers hope in the global fight against the disease, particularly in remote areas with limited diagnostic facilities.

He said though TB cases are on the decline in Kashmir, the disease continues to remain a significant global threat. "But with the power of AI, we are hopeful of eradicating this global menace at the earliest," he said.

The AI system, already operational in tuberculosis-free districts, is set to expand across the entire Kashmir region, he said, adding that training has been provided to staff, and a mobile app has been developed to enable people to record their cough sounds

Dr Adfar Qadri, the State Tuberculosis Officer said tat J&K has become a trendsetter in healthcare as two more districts - Anantnag and Pulwama - have been declared TB-free after Srinagar and Budgam.

Dr Qadri said tuberculosis is declining in Kashmir. "We will achieve TB elimination by 2025 as we are doing intensified and active case finding and case screening. Deepening Power Crisis he Kashmir Valley is experiencing an extreme cold over the past week with night temperature plunging to sub-zero. Srinagar witnessed the coldest night of the season as temperatures dipped to a low of minus 0.8 degrees Celsius on Sunday, marking a drop of nearly 2 degrees from the previous night's 0.9 degrees. According to the meteorological department, this was 1.0 degree below the normal temperatures expected for this time of year in the capital city. The city has also been waking up to a thick blanket of fog that has significantly reduced visibility, causing disruptions in both pedestrian and vehicular movement during the morning hours. This foggy condition has extended across various parts of the Kashmir valley, affecting daily routines for several hours.

The drop in temperatures has brought about a familiar set of challenges, particularly with power supply issues. It's unfortunate that this recurring problem hasn't received the attention it deserves from the government, leaving the public to endure the consequences year after year. Unscheduled outages, surpassing the already announced curtailment schedules, have become an unwelcome norm, hitting households and industries hard.

The worsening power situation has also impacted the healthcare system, a lifeline for many. Hospitals, from government-run facilities to private institutions, reel under the weight of power scarcity, impeding critical medical procedures and endangering the lives of patients, especially those reliant on intensive care units and life-sustaining equipment. The vulnerability of rural healthcare facilities, grappling with erratic power supply, exacerbates the hardships faced by communities.

As for ordinary people, pushed to the edge, they are resorting to purchasing alternative power sources like inverters, bearing the brunt of additional financial strain. Yet, these makeshift solutions cannot replace the dire need for a reliable and sustainable power supply.

The demand for improvement is thus understandable, especially with Chillai Kalan approaching and the inevitability of harsher weather conditions. It's essential for the Power Development Department to step up and better prepare for the upcoming challenges, especially considering its historical struggles in promptly restoring electricity after heavy snowfall.

Addressing the unfair implementation of power curtailment across different regions is crucial for ensuring that everyone is dealt with fairly during these difficult times. Hopefully, the government will take proactive steps to minimize the impact of the power shortage, acknowledging the hardship it brings to the lives of the people. Given the severity of the situation and its recurrent nature, it's understandable for the public to hope for a more effective response from the authorities this time around. Here's hoping that the government takes steps to make some redeeming difference to the situation.

Fuss or Fad: Being Vocal for Local?

A path to economic self-reliance amid global uncertainties hen we walk into a market, we are often surrounded by foreign brands. From essentials like diapers and shampoo to clothing and household products, everything seems to be dominated by international brands. This scenario prompts important questions: What have we been doing? Why don't we have more of our own brands? Even if we do have them, why do we prefer to buy global brands over homegrown ones?

This vast gap between domestic and international brand presence provides an opportunity for us to foster self-reliance. In the given global scenario, the time is ripe to develop our own brands, thereby reducing our dependence on foreign products. The covid-19 induced economic crisis has taught us how important it is to be economically self-reliant after the global economic supply chain was massively disrupted for months together.

So, it is imperative to break free from our inclination to choose foreign products over local ones and instill a sense of pride in our own brands. Creating homegrown alternatives to international brands can transform our economic environment reduce trade imbalances, and stimulate job creation within our country.

Promoting the purchase of indigenous products over foreign products in India can be achieved through a multi-faceted approach involving education, incentives, quality assurance, awareness campaigns, Local Brand Promotion, Online Marketplaces like e commerce, Consumer Discounts, Consumer Education, Retailer Support, Sustainable Practices, Community Engagement, School Curriculum, Cultural Relevance etc.

It's important to create a shift in the mindset of consumers and emphasize the broader benefits of buying indigenous products.

and promote the export of locallymade products. With 761 districts across the country included in the scheme, it is expected to carry export promotion of over 1000 products.

It is interesting to note that the desire for indigenous products is surging among Indian consumers, there's a notable shift away from global brands. Around 60% of respondents in a KPMG survey, spanning various age groups, express a strong inclination to replace foreign brands with customized, made-in-India products. This trend indicates a growing preference for locally crafted brands, showcasing a shift in consumer behavior and a willingness to pay an extra price for homegrown quality. J&K's Scenario

The scenario in J&K reveals the number of startups is very less almost negligible despite the huge and bountiful resources the UT is gifted with.The primary reason behind this is that we are brought up with the job oriented mentality All of us share the same dream ,the same goal of securing a Government job with a fallback plan to transition to the private sector if the initial pursuit proves unsuccessful. This rate race of acquiring hassle free jobs may inadvertently stifle our creative potential and hinder our productivity . Nobody National scenario reveals that 90% of the startup companies get closed before they even start properly. The rest 10% have to struggle with getting funds and searching for angel investors. Now one can imagine the plight of a small place like J&K where there are hardly any angel investors. However, in the last couple of years we have noticed an upward trend in local entrepreneurship neurship among our children from an early age. Rather than solely seeking government or private sector employment, we can empower our youth to create their own ventures. By nurturing and supporting homegrown entrepreneurs, we can transform our abundant resources into thriving markets.

Recently, Jammu & Kashmir's economy received a boost through the ODOP initiative, as 21 local products from 20 disheritage, and breathtaking natural beauty, is also blessed with an abundance of herbs and a diverse flora and fauna. Among these botanical treasures, Kashmir harbors a wealth of plants with medicinal qualities that have been cherished for their use in medical treatments, aromatherapy, and cosmetics. However, an unfortunate consequence of the high demand for these resources from countries such as Europe, China, and Japan has turned the region into a hotspot for smuggling activities.

Researchers have painstakingly documented 1,123 medicinal plants thriving in the fertile soils of Jammu and Kashmir. These plants possess untapped potential, yet it remains largely unexplored by the local population. The need of the hour is to initiate a transformation – one that harnesses our natural bounty to build a robust entrepreneurial ecosystem.

Education and Awareness

Education is the cornerstone of this transformation. We must launch comprehensive awareness programs to acquaint our people, especially the younger generation, with the treasures that lie in their own backyard. Knowledge about the medicinal and aromatic properties of local flora, and their value in various industries, is essential. This awareness is the first step toward unlocking economic potential while safeguarding our ecological heritage.

Role of NGOs

In this endeavor, non-governmental organizations (NGOs) can play a pivotal role. Rather than relying solely on sporadic fundraising efforts, they can channel their resources and energy into creating meaningful awareness campaigns. These organizations can extend their reach to educate children and collaborate with entrepreneurs to build a strong and sustainable network. By doing so, they can genuinely empower our youth and foster a culture of self-reliance.

Succinctly, J&K holds th tential for creating its own brands by leveraging natural resources wisely and pursuing a path of selfsufficiency. Initiatives must begin with education, awareness, and a collective commitment to preserve our natural wealth. By fostering a strong network of entrepreneurs, we empower our youth to seize opportunities at home, contribute to regional prosperity, and transform our natural treasures into a lasting source of wealth. Meanwhile, while the allure of global demand is enticing, it's essential that we strike a balance. We can no longer afford to let our precious resources be sold for meager sums. Instead, we must recognize the need to preserve them wisely, ensuring their sustainability for generations to come.

OTHER OPINON

India's drug detox

T has now followed up this move by setting up a team to develop a portal that will enable tracking of drug-making processes. Medicine manufacturers will be required to feed in details of raw materials and distributors will need to upload their invoices on this platform. The site will also contain information about spurious and poor-quality drugs unearthed by inspectors — this could help tackle the problem posed by the movement of substandard medicines across state borders. The platform will also track court cases related to the pharma industry.

Studies have shown that pharma majors outsource production to small units which often escape the regulatory radar. State regulatory bodies find it difficult to track down supply chains of firms that comprise fly-by-night operators. While adulteration gets belated attention at times, experts believe that a more intractable problem is that of substandard drugs that delay or compromise treatment. By all accounts, a large section of physicians in the country do not seem to have faith in unbranded drugs. In August, a doctors' protest forced the National Medical Commission to take back its directive on prescribing generic medicines. The use of IT-enabled procedures could make the pharma industry's processes transparent and improve coordination between the country's 36 regional regulators. But a single window for all drug regulation should be seen as only the first step towards restoring the credibility of generics.

India has among the toughest laws against spurious drugs. However, a robust regulatory mechanism also requires an effective system for monitoring manufacturing and sales units. That is still in the works. Most states haven't found a way to adopt the 20-year-old formula of the Mashelkar committee which recommended one drug inspector for 50 production units and one inspector for every 200 retail units. In several states, there is no clear demarcation between the roles of drug testing and food regulatory agencies. Field officials are often tasked with administrative work related to the cancellation and renewal of licenses. Their primary responsibility of scrutinising the safety and efficacy of medicines suffers as a result. That's why the creation of a portal for drug control should be accompanied by measures to enhance the capacity of regulatory bodies.

The Indian Express

These strategies can help create a more significant preference for Indian-made goods in the market. We have seen numerous government initiatives in the last few years with an aim to boost local entrepreneurship, such as Make in India, Vocal for Local, Digital India, and Startup India. These initiatives aim to revive the industrial sector and assist farmers, migrant workers and others in need. In response, state governments have also announced their own measures to stimulate economic activity in their respective regions. For example 'AatmaNirbhar' represents a major shift towards 'Made by India' from the earlier 'Made in India' slogan.

As part of India's push towards self-reliance, the government has launched the 'One District, One Product' initiative under the AatmaNirbhar Bharat Abhiyan. The initiative aims to boost local economic and socio-cultural growth, create employment opportunities, prefers to become an entrepreneur. The handful who finally manage to become one and launch a startup face a lot of difficulties in their initial phase.

National scenario reveals that 90% of the startup companies get closed before they even start properly. The rest 10% have to struggle with getting funds and searching for angel investors. Now one can imagine the plight of a small place like J&K where there are hardly any angel investors. However, in the last couple of years we have noticed an upward trend in local entrepreneurship where our youth are coming up with brilliant ideas and many of them are doing quite well in their own spaces.

How to help indigenous products find their way in international market

The union territory of Jammu and Kashmir holds the keys to unlocking a world of opportunities. To do so, we must first inspire and inculcate the spirit of entrepretricts of the Union Territory have been selected for export promotion. The ODOP initiative in India builds on this idea and aims to make products locally, from scratch to finish, instead of relying on global companies operating in India. This marks a significant shift towards the 'Made by India' approach. The scheme aims to achieve this by promoting local businesses and scaling up manufacturing, with a view to identifying potential foreign customers. Ultimately, the goal is to turn each district in India into an export hub, specializing in the product for which the district is known. It is here that J&K youth has to come forward and explore and get engaged in entrepreneurship.

In the picturesque landscapes of Kashmir, opportunities to cultivate indigenous brands abound, particularly in the realm of cosmetics and beyond. This region, renowned for its rich culture,

This painful fact will haunt the Men in Blue forever, who were absolutely dominant until the finals of the World Cup 2023, but eventually lost to Men in Yellow in the summit clash. Just over a month ago, the Aussies found themselves languishing at the very bottom of the points table, looking like a jaded unit, which seemed cooked and short of answers. But in an amazing turnaround, they managed to win nine games on a trot to become world champions. And it was a sort of poetic justice for Australia, as after losing to India and South Africa in the league stage, they stormed their way to the WC title, defeating the same two teams. It seems that Team India was destined to lose just one game in WC 2023, but unfortunately that game happened to be the final. On World Children's Day Children Need Happiness hildhood is a universal experience, something every adult across the world has gone through. For many, childhood is a time we are nostalgic for. It's a time of curiosity, imagination, exploration and incredible development. For many of us, a special adult helped us to learn and grow as children and led us to love learning. For some, it was a great teacher or wise neighbour. Others had parents, grandparents or other relatives who encouraged them to be curious and study hard. Even if vour childhood wasn't easy, you probably had at least one inspirational adult in your life who encouraged you and was a role model.

Unfortunately, not everyone has a good childhood. Proportionately, more children live in poverty than adults. 19.5 per cent of the world's children live in extreme poverty, and even though children are only one third of the global population, they are half of the poor. Around the world, many children live without access to clean water, enough food, or decent healthcare. Others live in extremely dangerous places and some are forced to join armies to fight wars they don't understand.

Over 120 million children do not attend school and even those who do are not always learning: two out of five students leave primary school not knowing how to read, write or do basic maths. Even those who may have happy memories of childhood did not necessarily have an easy life as a kid. Children are dependent on the adults in their life for support, and not all adults treat children well.

Even though every day is, or at least should be, a day to nurture and celebrate children, Universal Children's Day is celebrated as a special day around the world on November 20. In 1989 the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child – a 54-item list describing the universal rights of children - was signed. This document came out of the work of a lot of experts and representatives from many nations who met to create a child-specific version of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights that was signed in 1948. The Convention on the Rights of the Child is the most widely and quickly signed treaty in history, meaning it was quickly adopted into

global observance that celebrates and promotes the rights and well-being of children worldwide. It serves as a reminder of the importance of ensuring that every child has the opportunity to grow, learn, and thrive in a safe and nurturing environment. Since its inception, Universal Children's Day has been an opportunity to advocate for children's rights and promote awareness of the challenges and opportunities facing children worldwide.

Universal Children's Day is a United Nations (UN) initiative that emphasizes the fundamental rights of children. It was established to promote and protect children's rights as outlined in the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child. These rights include the right to education, health, protection, and participation in decisions that affect their lives.

Celebrating Universal Children's Day involves activities and initiatives that promote the welfare and rights of children. Organize workshops, seminars, or educational events that raise awareness about children's rights and the importance of quality education. Advocate for policies and actions that protect and support children's wellbeing, including access to healthcare, nutrition, and safe environments.

Contribute to organizations that work to improve the lives of children through education, healthcare, and social programs. Encourage children to express themselves through art, music, and creative activities that celebrate their talents and voices. Ensure that all children, regardless of their background, have equal opportunities and access to education and resources.

Mothers and fathers, teachers, nurses and doctors, government leaders and civil society activists, religious and community elders, corporate tycoons and media professionals, as well as young people and children themselves, can play an important part in making World Children's Day relevant for their societies, communities and nations.

Children's Day in India is also popular as 'Bal Diwas' and is celebrated every year across the country on November 14. This day honors the birth anniversary of India's first Prime Minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, broadly known as 'Chacha Nehru'. Nehru was a major advocate of children's education and rights. He had confidence in an inclusive education system and that a country could succeed. His vision focused on children being the future of the nation and the foundation of society. In 1955, he established the Children's Film Society India to give a platform to the issues of children.

In the year 1948, Children's Day was first marked as "Flower Day" on November 5. It was an effort by the Indian Council of Child Welfare (ICCW) to gather funds for the Unified Nations Appeal for Children (UNAC) through the offer of "flower tokens." Later, in 1954, Nehru's birthday was first celebrated as Children's Day.

The importance of Children's Day lies in its significant emphasis on recognizing the importance of a protected and healthy childhood. It fills in as a reminder that childhood isn't simply a stage but a foundational period that shapes people and, thus, the general public they contribute to.

It promotes the privileges of kids as well as highlights the requirements for their general prosperity, including education, nourishment, and a safe family environment. The festival fills in as a societal reminder to protect the innocence and capability of children, considering them as the future leaders of our world.

Children's Day is observed by the tone of affection, gifts, and spoiling of students. Teachers in schools sort out special projects and performances for students which additionally incorporate contests, for example, debating, painting, quizzes, singing, and dancing. As a part of the celebrations, the exchange of gifts like books and cards additionally happens among students.

As universal Children's Day was created to change the way children are viewed and treated by society and to improve children's welfare. Universal Children's Day is a day to advocate for and champion the rights of children. Children's rights are not special rights or different rights. They are fundamental human rights. A child is a human being, entitled to be treated as one and should be celebrated as such.

Millions of children throughout the world live in extreme poverty. The children are often deprived of medicine, education and shelter. Many live without access to clean water. They are unprotected and oppressed, starved of affection and opportunity and trapped in a cycle of disadvantage passed from one generation to another, if they're able to survive past childhood.

Since the Convention on the Rights of the Child was adopted, the global mortality rate for children under five years old has been cut in half. The world community is beginning to give its best to children. It's improving the odds for every child, giving them a chance to rise above disadvantage and discrimination, to push past predators and abuse, to fight off disease, ignorance, malnutrition and shame so they may live up to their fullest potential.

There is a lot to be done to make the world a safer, more supportive place for children. The good news is, you're an adult and you have the power to influence the next generation in the most wonderful way. Start by explaining the Rights of the Child to the children in your life. Let them know that they, just like all human beings, have rights. Help a child learn to love learning, so they can become a motivated adult just like you.

AI Is Now Accessible To Everyone: 3 Things Parents Should Teach Their Kids

Kathy Mills & Christian Moro

It is almost a year since ChatGPT burst onto the scene, fuelling great excitement as well as concern about what it might mean for education.

The changes keep coming. Earlier in the year, MyAl was embedded into social media platform Snapchat. This is a chatbot powered by ChatGPT, which encourages teens to ask anything - from gift suggestions for friends to questions about homework.

Meanwhile, Microsoft is rolling out "Copilot" on its systems, billed as an "everyday AI companion". This follows the introduction of "Bing Chat", an AI-enhanced assistant to accompany the Bing search tool.

All of a sudden, generative artificial intelligence – which can create new content such as text and images – has become accessible to everyone, including young people.

We are researchers with a background in digital technology and are highly enthusiastic about the potential for AI. However, there are risks as well as benefits. Here are three things parents can keep in mind as they navigate AI technology with their kids.

AI is here to stay

Artificial intelligence itself is not new – chatbots and generative AI have been around since the 1960s.

But over the past year there has been a rapid expansion in the size of AI databases, huge financial investments into these technologies, more innovative code, and enhanced accessibility and usability.

Parents may be naturally hesitant about AI. Many schools have considered banning some AI uses, amid claims it would lead to cheating and undermine academic integrity.

But AI is not going to go away, and will only become more widely used in our lives. The sooner young people learn to use this technology, the more informed they can be about how to use it wisely and productively.

If you are a parent, it is important to learn about and try these technologies for yourself so you can help your child navigate a world with AI. Start by logging in to a free generative AI tool, and experiment together by asking the bot some questions and reflecting on the answers.

Be critical

Generative AI can do amazing things – like generate images or write stories – but it does not reflect on what it's writing. It will string text together in a way that makes sense but not "read between the lines".

Generative AI cannot evaluate the credibility of sources, nor can it always find authoritative information to back up claims. The generative AI software is also trained on data from a specific time so recent events may not be included.

So children need to learn that although it looks similar to other writing, such as in a book or article, the text has been pieced together by computer code. This means every word, sentence and claim should be treated with scepticism.

You can use this as an opportunity to help your children develop critical thinking skills.

Go to a free AI art generator with your school-age child and put in some searches. Then ask your child questions such as, "What kinds of people are shown? What kinds are missing? Do you see any stereotypes? Can you see any biases?".

Watch out for chatbots

Chatbots are computer programs designed to simulate conversations as if they were another human.

For example, there were more than ten million Replika users as of 2022. Replika is a chatbot billed as a companion who cares. It acts like a friend but relationships with the chatbot can become romantic or sexual.

In many chatbot applications such as this, there may be no moderation or human checks on inappropriate content. So be aware if your child spending a long time with AI "friends".

If left unaccompanied, these types of applications could feed into a child's curiosity and potentially manipulate them into unethical and harmful situations, like highly personal conversations with a bot.

Make it clear to your children that generative AI is machine, not a human. It does not share your ideals, beliefs, culture or religion. It presents text and language based on models and algorithms. It is not something to argue with, take lessons from, or be used to reinforce your values.

The code may also be manually edited to inhibit certain viewpoints or stances on topics.

Images, videos and audio also matter

With all the focus on text, be sure to remind your children images and video are also part of the generative AI landscape. Children may be careful about what text they enter online but careless with uploading images.

Their photos and facial image become available to AI when uploaded, which makes it harder to protect their identity. For example, ChatGPT now has image capabilities you can include in your conversations with the chatbot. Discuss privacy with your child, and be sure to mention that any data uploaded to the internet can be stored, scanned and processed by AI.

Al can be a powerful learning and engagement tool, and the developments in this field are highly exciting. With open conversations and some oversight, the possibilities of children greatly benefiting from this technology are endless.

'91% Of Indian Gen Z Workers Prepared For Al Adoption At Workplace'

en Z in India is excited to use generative AI in the workplace, with 91 per cent saying they feel prepared for their employer to adopt the technology in everyday work, a report showed on Friday.

While 81 per cent of Gen Z employees have leveraged generative AI to enhance their work, 45 per cent seek training for hard skills related to their jobs, compared to 40 per cent for soft skills, according to Adobe's 'Future Workforce Study for India'.

"Gen Z workers are the most tech-savvy generation yet, and they're eager to embrace disruptive technologies like generative AI. To capitalise on this opportunity, organisations must strike a balance between embracing these technologies and nurturing a culture that aligns with evolving requirements," said Prativa Mohapatra, Vice President and Managing Director at Adobe India.

Gen Z is eager to lend their perspectives at work, with most respondents (96 per cent) saying they are comfortable providing feedback to their peers and colleagues.

An overwhelming majority of Gen Z workers (93 per cent) in the country are eager to grow, not only in impact but up the corporate ladder to the C-suite. "While 87 per cent say they feel good about career growth opportunities at their company, 46 per cent of respondents ranked no clear path to promotion as one of the top reasons they would leave a job," the report said.

Gen Z is also eager for career guidance, with 91 per cent saying they believe a workplace mentor is crucial for their career.

However, just 76 per cent of Gen Z report having a mentor at work.

Gen Z prioritises their professional growth in a workplace, ranking no clear path for promotion as the number one reason for leaving a job (46 per cent), closely followed by less than satisfactory pay (43 per cent), the findings showed.

Fully Injectable Continuous Glucose Monitor For Diabetics Soon

esearchers at Texas A&M University in the US are working to create a fully injectable continuous glucose monitor (CGM) so small it rivals a grain of rice and can be used with an external optical reader to measure sugar levels at any given time.

Two faculty members from the Department of Biomedical Engineering at the university have received a National Science Foundation (NSF) grant to fund a multidisciplinary project to develop an injectable, grain-of-rice-sized glucose biosensor and wearable device.

"Continuous glucose monitors (CGMs) are commercially available, but most of them are indwelling, meaning there is a needle in the skin connected to a patch on the arm," said co-principal investigator and Regents Professor, Dr Gerard Cote.

"There is one CGM that is totally implantable, but it is much bigger than ours and requires a doctor to surgically implant it with an incision," he added.

Cote and his lab are designing the injected sensor's chemistry and developing the watch-type reader device.

The sensor is put under the skin and analysed using light from the watch-like device to determine the glucose concentration.

The reader sends the signal to a cell phone and the patient can share the results with their health provider.

"The chemical assay in the injectable sensor is used to determine the concentration of the glucose within the tissue, and the watch device sends in light and measures the fluorescence from the sensor to give the sugar concentration," Cote explained.

The sensor and wearable reader employ an optical sensing technology that addresses the challenges associated with biosensing for populations of darker skin tones.

"We use chemistry that has a fluorescent colour that emits in the red and infrared range rather than green light, which works better for the darker skin tones," Cote said.

Book Highlights Handcrafted Carpets, Rugs And Mats Of Kashmir

Press Trust Of India

NEW DELHI: Textile researcher Promil Pande explores the age-old traditional craft practices of Kashmir, particularly a variety of floor coverings, in her illustrated book. "Floor Coverings from Kashmir: Kaleen Carpets, Namdah, Gabba, Ari Rugs and Wagoo Mats" details the various types of floor coverings created in Jammu and Kashmir, tracing their origin in the case of Wagoo mats from the Indus Valley Civilization to the reign of King Zainul-Abidin in the 15th century in the case of pashmina shawls.

With the shawl weavers later transferring their skills to carpets, the author talks about the history, craft production networks and cultural context of Kashmir, where these exquisite handwoven floor coverings are created.

Published by Niyogi Books, "Floor Coverings from Kashmir" also traces the weaving of hand-knotted rugs back to the Pazyryk carpet made 2,000 years ago (now in the Hermitage Museum, St. Petersburg). Weaving the story of carpet production in India, Pande explains the role of the Mughal emperors who set up imperial karkhanas or workshops, where master weavers were commissioned to weave rugs for the royal palaces.

The gradual shift from the predominant Persian style during the reign of Jahangir to a more Mughal or flower style during the reign of Shah Jahan is explained, as is the patronage of weavers by Rajput rulers in their kingdoms.

The London Exhibition of 1851 introduced Indian carpet weaving to a larger global audience, along with the exquisite pashmina shawls, also known as param narams, which led to their becoming a highly sought after luxury item of attire in Europe.

In separate chapters, the author provides details of the traditional craft networks in Kashmir that led to the production of the different types of floor coverings: Kaleen Carpets, Namdah, Gabba, Ari Rugs and Wagoo mats.

GDP Growth To Dip Marginally To 6.3% In 2024; Political Uncertainty In Election Year Main Risk: Report

Press Trust Of India

NEW DELHI: India's real GDP growth will decline marginally to 6.3 per cent in 2024 from the 6.4 per cent estimated for 2023, an American brokerage firm said on Monday. The next calendar year will be of two halves, wherein the government spending before the upcoming General Elections will be the key driver for growth, while after the elections, it will be the re-acceleration in investment growth, especially from the private sector, Goldman Sachs said in a report.

From a fiscal year perspective, the brokerage said it expects growth to accelerate to 6.5 per cent for FY25 from the 6.2 per cent it has projected for the ongoing FY24, it added. "India has the best structural growth prospects in the region. We believe GDP growth is likely to stay robust at 6.3 per cent y-o-y (year-on-year) in 2024," the brokerage said, adding the country is less sensitive to potential external shocks like longer rates globally, persistent dollar strength and geopolitical uncertainties.

The brokerage said risks around the growth outlook are evenly balanced but added that "the main domestic risk" is emanating from political uncertainty, with elections approaching in the April-June quarter of 2024. The election season is already underway with Assembly polls in five states, which will be followed by the General Elections later, it said, adding that outcomes of these elections will be "keenly watched" by investors from the standpoint of economic reforms and/or policy continuity. It expects headline consumer price inflation to come at 5.1 per cent for 2024, against 4.7 per cent estimated by the Reserve Bank. This will, however, be lower than the 5.7 per cent expected in 2023, it added. "We expect the government to intervene through subsidies or other measures to keep a lid on food prices in an election year," it said.

Higher Risk Weight On Unsecured Bank Loans Credit Positive: Moody's

Press Trust Of India

NEW DELHI: The RBI's decision to tighten norms for unsecured personal loans is credit positive because lenders will need to allocate higher capital for such loans, thus improving their loss-absorbing buffers, Moody's Investors Service said on Monday.

The Reserve Bank last week raised risk weights on unsecured retail loans, credit cards and lending to non-banking finance companies (NBFCs) by 25 percentage points.

Moody's said unsecured loans have been growing rapidly in the past few years, exposing financial institutions to a potential spike in credit costs and financial technology (fintech) companies, including several new entrants, aggressively growing loans in this category. In the past two years, personal loans grew around 24 per cent and credit card loans rose 28 per cent on an average compared with the overall banking sector's credit growth of around 15 per cent, Moody's said.

"We expect banks would be able to absorb higher risk eights on their capital be-

NEW DELHI: Express logistics provider Blue Dart on Monday said it has set up digital parcel locker service at post offices un-code and open the locker, the company said.

Additionally, the deliveries can be collected at any time, and only authorised personnel can access the packages.

Blue Dart Managing Director Balfour Manuel said this transformative partnership underscores unwavering commitment to exceptional customer service, providing customers the option to collect packages at their convenience This initiative demonstrates the company's commitment to revolutionise hyper-connected city logistics, enhancing lastmile delivery efficiency while ensuring a reliable and secure experience for our customers in an increasingly digital and on-demand world. Blue Dart Express Ltd is South Asia's premier express air and integrated transportation and distribution company, offering delivery of consignments to over 56,000 locations in India.

"Blue Dart and India Post forge strategic partnership for enhanced services. Under the collaboration, Blue Dart has introduced automated digital parcel lockers at selected post offices, offering customers an additional delivery method," the statement said.

These parcel lockers keep their contents secure and are easily accessible. When the recipient needs to retrieve a package from the locker, they can simply enter the assigned er equipment. This is where all of us AP&FWD, NIC and Banks have to put in efforts to take these credit linked schemes under HADP to every nook and corner of the UT and make farmers aware about the benefits of these schemes."

"Moreover, we need to handhold these farmers at every stage so that they opt for modern equipment, effective fertilizers/pesticides and more importantly the right credit facility without hassles. is to increase income of our farmers and rural community which will eventually lead to more stable and surging economy of our UT."

While giving an overview of this flagship initiative Technical Officer AP&FWD Dr Anjum Andrabi stated, "We are hugely dependant on agriculture that contributes around 19% to our GDP. So boosting this sector through modern means and technology was need of the hour."

in case of sudden economic or interest rate shocks.

"The tightening of underwriting norms through higher risk-weighted assets is credit positive because lenders will need to allocate higher capitals for such loans improving their loss-absorbing buffers and may dampen their growth appetite," Moody's said in a statement.

It said that over the past few years, India's unsecured lending segment has become very competitive, with banks, NBFCs cause the overall banking sector's exposure to unsecured retail credit is small at around 10 per cent of loans as of September 2023 and the sector's overall capitalization is at historically high levels with a Common Equity Tier 1 ratio of 13.9 per cent as of March 2023," Moody's said.

However, the impact of the new underwriting rules could vary among individual lenders depending on their exposure to unsecured loans, it added.

EPFO Adds 17.21 Lakh Net Members In September

Press Trust Of India

NEW DELHI: Retirement fund body EPFO recorded a net addition of 17.21 lakh members in September, according to payroll data released on Monday.

Month-on-month comparison of payroll data shows an increase of 21,475 net members over August 2023, a labour ministry statement said. Year-on-year comparison of payroll data reflects an increase of 38,262 net members over September 2022.

Around 8.92 lakh new members enrolled during September 2023, the ministry said. Among these newly joined members, the age group of 18-25 years constitutes 58.92 per cent of total new members added during the month.

This demonstrates that a majority of the members joining the organised sector workforce of the country are youth, who are mostly first-time job seekers, it explained.

Payroll data shows that approximately 11.93 lakh members exited but rejoined EPFO, it stated.

These members switched their jobs and re-joined the establishments covered under the ambit of EPFO and opted to transfer their accumulations instead of applying for final settlement thus, extending their social security protection, it explained.

As compared to the previous month, the number of exits de-creased by 12.17 per cent with 3.64 lakh exits in September 2023.

The data indicated that the number of members exiting the EPFO has been declining since June 2023.

The ministry stated that out of a total of 8.92 lakh new members added during the month, around 2.26 lakh are female members, joining EPFO for the first time. Also, the net female member addition during the month stood at around 3.30 lakh.

State-wise analysis of payroll data denotes that net member addition is the highest in Maharashtra, Tamil Nadu, Karnataka, Gujarat and Haryana. These states constitute around 57.42 per cent of net member addition, adding a total of 9.88 lakh members during the month.

Of all the states, Maharashtra is leading by adding 20.42 per cent of net members during the month.

Month-on-month comparison of industry-wise data displays significant growth in the members working in establishments engaged in the sugar industry, courier services, iron and steel, hospitals, travel agencies etc.

Of the total net membership, around 41.46 per cent addition is from expert services (consisting of manpower suppliers, normal contractors, security services, miscellaneous activities etc.).

Global Slowdown To Stall Office Space Leasing Demand This Fiscal

Press Trust Of India

MUMBAI: Commercial office space leasing is likely to stagnate at 32-34 million square feet in the country this fiscal due to the lingering global uncertainties which are spawning caution among key tenant categories, says a report.

However, the inherent strengths of the domestic commercial realty market and the increasing shift to return to office should help demand pick up over the medium term, helping keep the credit profiles of office asset owners stable, Crisil Ratings said in a report on Monday.

The domestic commercial office space is dominated by technology companies, with IT and IT-enabled services companies occupying 42-45 per cent of the operational stock. Global capability centres of multinational companies have also emerged as a key category of tenants in the past few years, occupying around a third of the total stock. These two will keep demand modest at 32-34 million square feet this fiscal in the near-term amid global economic headwinds, the report noted.

According to Gautam Shahi, a director with the agency, net leasing of office space will be impacted by two factors this fiscal. One, headcount addition in the IT/ITeS sector has already come to a halt amid tapering revenue growth and pressure on profitability.

Also, the sector may look to control costs, including rent. Secondly, global capability centres may defer largescale leasing plans in the country amid weak macroeconomic outlook in key regions such as the US and Europe.

However, demand from domestic enterprises in the banking, financial services and insurance, consulting, engineering, pharma, and e-commerce segments, which occupy the remainder of the office market, will remain buoyant, resulting in net leasing of 32-34 msf this fiscal, same as that in fiscal 2023.

Employers pushing for increased physical occupancy in offices may prove to be another tailwind for office leasing, he notes and adds that most companies, including those in technology, which otherwise were favouring work-from-home, are now pushing for return to office on most days and physical occupancy, which averaged 40 per cent last fiscal, is expected at 65-70 per cent this fiscal.

According to Saina Kathawala, an associate director with the agency, notwithstanding the near-term hiccups, net leasing is expected to grow 10-12 per cent next fiscal to 36-38 msf. Growth is expected to remain at a similar level over the medium term as well supported by both global capability centres and domestic enterprises.

UN report says world is racing to well past warming limit as carbon emissions rise instead of plunge

United Nations: Earth is speeding to 2.5 to 2.9 degrees Celsius (4.5 to 5.2 degrees Fahrenheit) of global warming since pre-industrial times, set to blow well past the agreed-upon inter-national climate threshold, a United Nations report calculated.

To have an even money shot at keeping warming to the 1.5-degree Celsius (2.7 degrees Fahrenheit) limit adopted by the 2015 Paris climate agreement, countries have to slash their emissions by 42% by the end of the decade, said the U.N. Environment Programme's Emissions Gap report issued Monday. Carbon emissions from the burning of coal, oil and gas rose 1.2% last year, the report said.

This year Earth got a taste of what's to come, said the report, which sets the table for international climate talks later this month.

Through the end of September, the daily global average temperature exceeded 1.5 degrees Celsius above mid-19th century levels on 86 days this year, the report said. But that increased to 127 days because nearly all of the first two weeks of November and all of October reached or exceeded 1.5 degrees, according to the European climate service Copernicus. That's 40% of the days so far this year.

On Friday, the globe hit 2 degrees Celsius (3.6 degrees) above pre-industrial levels for the first time in recorded history, according to Copernicus Deputy Director Samantha Burgess.

"It's really an indication that we are already seeing a change, an acceleration," said report lead author Anne Olhoff of Denmark's climate think tank Concito. "Based on what science tells us, this is just like a whisper. What will be in the future will be more like a roar."

It's dangerous already, said UNEP Director Inger Andersen.

"Temperatures are hitting new heights, while extreme weather events are occurring more and more often, developing faster and becoming much more intense," Andersen said. The new report "tells us that it's going to take a massive and urgent shift to avoid these records falling year after year.

The 1.5-degree goal is based on a time period measured over many years, not days, scientists said. Earlier reports put Earth reaching that longer term limit in early 2029 without dramatic emission changes.

To keep that from happening, the countries of the world have to come up with more stringent goals to cut emissions of carbon dioxide and implement policies to act on those goals, Olhoff said.

In the past two years only nine countries have come up with new goals, so that hasn't moved the needle, but some countries, including the United States and those in Europe, have put policies in place that slightly improved the outlook, she said.

United States' Inflation The Reduction Act. which has 375 billion in spending on clean energy, by 2030 would reduce yearly emissions of carbon dioxide by about 1 billion metric tons, Olhoff said.

That sounds like a lot, but the world in 2022 spewed 57.4 billion metric tons of greenhouse gases and to limit warming to the 1.5 degree mark emissions in 2030 have to be down to 33 billion metric tons. That's an "emissions gap" of 24 billion metric tons.

United Nations Secretary-General Antonio Guterres said "the emissions gap is more like an emissions canyon a canyon littered with broken promises, broken lives and broken records.'

That's why the report said the chance of keeping warming at or under 1.5 degrees is about one-in-seven or about 14%, "very, very slim indeed," Olhoff said.

If the world wants to settle for a warming limit of 2 degrees Celsius a secondary threshold in the Paris agreement it only has to trim emissions down to 41 billion metric tons, with a gap of 16 billion metric tons from now, the report said.

Because the world has already warmed nearly 1.2 degrees Celsius (2.2 degrees Fahrenheit) since the mid-19th century, the report's projections would mean another 1.3 to 1.7 degrees Celsius (2.3 to 3.1 degrees Fahrenheit) warming by the end of this century. For two years countries have known they have to come up with more ambitious emission cuts targets if the world wants to limit warming to 1.5 degrees, but "none of the large emitters have changed their pledges," said study coauthor Niklas Hohne, a scientist at the New Climate Institute in Germany.

That's why for the past few years the grim outlook from annual Emissions Gap reports barely changed, Olhoff said. This year's emissions gap report is accurate yet not surprising and the projected temperature range fits with other groups' calculations, said Climate Analytics scientist Bill Hare, who wasn't part of the report.

Guterres reiterated his call for countries to phase out the use of fossil fuels in time to keep the 1.5 degree limit alive, saying "otherwise we're simply inflating the lifeboats while breaking the oars."

"We know now that the impacts of climate change, of global warming of somewhere between 2.5 and 3 degrees Celsius are going to be massive," Olhoff said in an interview. "It's basically not a future I think anybody would want for their children and grandchildren and so forth. The good news, of course, is that we can act and we know what we have to do." (AP) working? You can see for yourself what has happened to these pipes and the bore-wells. They are not serving any purpose," Reshi told Kashmir Observer, while pointing at the defunct sprinkle irrigation system in a saffron field on the eastern side of Srinagar-Jammu highway in Pampore.

Reshi and several other farmers have had a "dismal production" this year as the bulbs in their farms had got damaged by drought and rodents. However, some farmers whose crops had survived, said that they got a good yield following a spell of rain last month.

Lack of rainfall, especially from August to October amid fluctuation in temperature during the crop cycle, causes an outbreak of pests and diseases which damages the crop, Reshi and other farmers said.

One of the farmers who has had a good crop this year is Abdul Rahman who lives in Lethpora-Pulwama, where most saffron production is concentrated.

Rahman said that it was a stroke of luck that his crop was not damaged as it received natural irrigation because of the rain spell. "The government has apparently spent hundreds of crores (of rupees) on irrigation infrastructure for ensuring a good saffron production, but we still depend on rainfall for saffron cultivation. This is a pity," Abdul Rahman told Kashmir Observer adding that "our primary concern (about irrigation) is yet to be addressed."

According to him, the most important thing the government was supposed to do for the farmers was to make water available for the crop. "Though tube-wells have been dug and pipes have been laid for years now, we are yet to see the water in saffron fields," he said.

However, Ghulam Mohammad Dhobi, Joint Director of agriculture department who is also the Nodal Officer for NMS, said that the farmers are also responsible if the irrigation system is yet to work.

"We have observed that at many places the irrigation networks have been removed by farmers from their fields using them as barricades for their farms," the Nodal Officer recipes. Within Kashmir, saffron is mostly added to Kahwa - the traditional Saffron Tea drunk by people in Kashmir which has also become very popular with the tourists who visit the region annually.

Saffron is one of Kashmir's major industries along with horticulture and agriculture, supporting some 20,000 families according to experts at Sher-e-Kashmir University of Agricultural Sciences and Technology. Saffron has been cultivated since 500 AD in Kashmir. Saffron production in the valley had reached its peak in the 1990s at an annual average of around 15.5 tonnes from 5,700 hectares (14,085 acres), but both the land farmed for saffron and yields have declined since then.

The Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) has declared Kashmir as a heritage crop, a distinction only a few crops have achieved globally. "Saffron cultivation is typical in the Kashmir region. This plant is mentioned in the 5th century B.C in Kashmiri records and is still part of the agricultural economy. Known all over the world, Saffron became a cash crop for farmers resulting from a long traditional heritage," FAO has noted about Kashmir's saffron.

The association highlighted that adverse weather conditions extend beyond conventional challenges of rain and snowfall. With temperatures reaching sub-zero levels and visibility significantly reduced due to fog, the journey to school becomes arduous, especially for young students.

In a statement, National Convener of Association Nasir Khuehami said, "The Lieutenant Governor administration should consider these changes in weather. It is very difficult for kids to go to school in extreme cold and fog.

The plea specifically calls for winter vacations up to Class 8, citing the vulnerability of younger students to harsh weather conditions. Nasir Khuehami stressed the urgency, urging the LG to make the announcement as soon as possible to alleviate the hardships faced by students and their families.

National General Secretary Ummar Jamal said, "Bad weather doesn't only mean rain and snowfall. It includes cold when the temperature dips to minus, and visibility becomes very low due to fog. Authorities should consider these changes in weather. It is very difficult for kids to go to school in extreme cold and fog."

"As winter tightens its grip on the region, we hope that the government will prioritize the well-being of students and take prompt action to ensure a safe and comfortable learning environment during the challenging weather conditions," Jamal added.

The Principal Secretary, he said, also stressed that under no circumstances should J&K engage in overdrawal of power, which is important not only to stay within the budget but also to uphold grid discipline and prevent unwarranted disruptions in power supply.

"It was further highlighted that sufficient infrastructure has been created in recent years to improve the quality of power supply in the region. Additionally, I&K has availed loans under various Government of India schemes such as Atmanirbhar Bharat and LPS Rules, whereby all outstanding dues of power generators accumulated over the years have been cleared," the spokesperson said.

movement of people in the wee hours. Long queues of vehicles were seen stuck in traffic Jams across Srinagar city in the morning. However, with increase in visibility and temperatures the traffic movement streamlined.

"It is becoming increasingly difficult to ride a bike during morning hours and there is very less visibility. With the increase in foggy conditions, I think the temperatures have also dropped. Before riding, I made sure I was fully covered" said Aamir Shafi, a student of Kashmir University.

"Walking in the morning and evening hours has become difficult owing to the foggy conditions. More than elders, students find it difficult to attend classes in the chilly weather conditions" said Manzoor Ahmad, a pedestrian.

The foggy weather conditions also affected air traffic during the morning hours.

A senior official from Srinagar International Airport told Kashmir Observer that one flight was cancelled while three others were diverted, two of which belonged to Indigo and one to Spice Jet.

"The Indigo flight which had taken off from Hyderabad had to return back owing to foggy weather. It was the only flight that was cancelled today. The other two rescheduled flights returned to the Srinagar International Airport." he said.

"All other flights operated as per the schedule," he added. Army Commander.

the forces, plans for zero tolerance to terror and the se-curity and administrative arrangements amid upcoming winters," according to a post on the X account of the Army's Udhampur-based Northern Command.

Sharing pictures of the interaction, it said the Indian Army and the Jammu and Kashmir Police are committed to bolster safety and security of the Union Territory.

Police and other security agencies are on high alert across Jammu and Kashmir, especially along the Line of Control, to thwart any infiltration attempt by terrorists before heavy snowfall blocks the possible infiltration routes, officials said told Kashmir Observer.

But, farmers such as Rahman and Reshi argued that some farmers have done it out of anger as the sprinkle irrigation network has never supplied any water to the fields.

"The pipes only act as hurdles when we have to plant the bulbs and tend our farms. So, some farmers might be removing them out of frustration." Abdul Rahman said and added that he and other farmers have informed the government many times about the failure of the sprinkle irrigation system, "but we didn't get any satisfactory answer".

According to Dhobi and officials of the mechanical wing of the Public Works Department, some work is also pending because there has been no funding for NMS in the last three years.

"We have dug 128 bore-wells in the saffron land out of which 111 bore-wells were dug in Pulwama district alone. We will dig the remaining bore-wells also when the pending funding (Rs 85 crores) is released," Dhobi said, adding 22 bore-wells were tested and started this year.

But, this was refuted by farmers who maintained that they are yet to see any benefits of the sprinkle irrigation system even as infrastructure for the purpose seems to be in place.

"All the bore-wells will be handed over to the community (saffron growers), but the farmers have to make sure that the infrastructure remains safe and usable," Dhobi said.

Reyaz Khan, Executive Engineer, Machinery, in the Mechanical Engineering Division (Kashmir) said that the department has completed its work (70 to 75 percent) and the remaining work will be done as soon as the funds are released.

"We have not left any lacuna in our work," he said.

Scientific research has established that irrigation plays the most important role for saffron cultivation in Kashmir. Research published by noted saffron expert, Firdous Nahvi, who worked at Sher-e-Kashmir University of Agricultural Sciences and Technology, highlights that saffron yields are falling because of the irrigation problem.

According to Nahvi, until 1999-2000, Kashmir received well-distributed precipitation of 1,000 to 1,200 mm per year, in the form of rain and snow, but that has now decreased to 600 to 800 mm.

"In any part of the world, farming is unthinkable without water," Nahvi notes and adds: "Creating irrigation facilities was the critical part of the project because we have observed in recent years that it doesn't rain when the crop needs the moisture." He was the expert who advised the NMS implementers about the need for installing the sprinkle irrigation system for saffron cultivation in Kashmir.

The world's most expensive spice, saffron (Crocus sativus) - whose tiny orange strands are used for seasoning and colouring from southern Europe to South Asia - is grown mainly in Kashmir, Iran and Spain. Saffron crop is extremely sensitive to climatic conditions. One kg of Kashmiri saffron fetches around 250,000 rupees in domestic and international markets though prices have come down in recent years according to the farmers.

The orange stigmas of the saffron plant are harvested as saffron and used as a flavoring and coloring agent in various cold, especially in the mornings.

"My child often shivers from the cold and occasionally begs not to send him to school. I truly feel bad for him when drop him off in the morning," says Tariq, whose kid attends Government High School Sonwar.

When contacted Additional Secretary School Education, Naseer Ahmad passed the buck to the Director School Education, saying he is the only person authorized to speak on the matter.

"Actually what you are talking about does not come under my domain, it's better if you talk to the Director School Education as he may be the right person to answer vour queries," Naseer Ahmad told Kashmir Observer.

Director of Education Dr. Tassaduq Hussain Mir could not be reached despite many attempts through text and phone calls.

Renowned influenza expert, Dr Nisar-ul Hassan, when contacted said it would be better if the government announces winter vacations at the earliest so the children are protected from the common winter illnesses.

"Since children are susceptible to the flu, their parents may also become ill at home. If schools cannot provide adequate heating arrangements to children in schools, what good is it to keep them open? It would be better to announce the winter break as early as possible," said Dr Nisar, who is also the president of Doctors Association of Kashmir (DAK)

"Vaccinating children against common winter illnesses is essential, and schools do not provide this service during the colder months." Schools have no right to endanger the students when they don't have basic amenities like air heating and immunizations, he told Kashmir Observer.

Echoing similar views, President of the Private Schools Association of Jammu and Kashmir (PSAJK), GN War said that primary school winter breaks ought to be announced at the earliest. However, he quickly added that the decision about winter break up to the tenth grade may be taken later.

Regarding insufficient heating arrangements in private schools, War said that not all private schools that charge students a meager amount of Rs. 200 or Rs. 300 a month can afford to provide such amenities.

"Let the government spend millions of rupees that would otherwise go unused on these kinds of amenities at private schools. Why do they not act in this way? How is it possible for a school owner who charges students between Rs. 200 and Rs. 300 a month to offer heating for them," War told Kashmir Observer.

He was however quick to add that necessary action must be taken against those schools, which despite charging thousands of rupees from students fail to provide heating arrangements.

"So far as winter vacations are concerned, we also demand it to be announced as early as possible at least up to 5th grade. Rest the decision regarding the classes up to 10th can be taken later given the incomplete syllabus at schools,' added War.

The Jammu and Kashmir Students Association (JKSA) has also requested Lieutenant Governor Manoj Sinha to announce winter vacations, particularly for lower classes, on

"However, under the schemes the J&K has committed to the GoI that the losses shall be reduced to minimum to ensure the viability of the sector," he added.

In line with the commitment to reduce the losses, the spokesperson said, the Principal Secretary issued explicit instructions to the engineers to put an all out effort to eradicate the menace of power pilferage by adopting stringent enforcement measures.

Prasad, he said, asked to maintain regular power supply in areas where people are regularly paying for their consumption, whereas in high loss areas, measures like metering and AB cabling be taken on priority.

"Principal Secretary noted with deep concern that despite dispatching more energy to the valley during this year compared to previous year, there has not been much improvement in the revenue realization," he said

"As such, he directed the concerned officers to ensure that the bills are timely generated and distributed to the consumers. He also directed that the power outages be attended promptly and faults be cleared with minimum downtime particularly the damaged Distribution Transformers (DT) be replaced in the shortest possible time to avoid any inconvenience to people," he added.

In conclusion, the spokesperson said, the Principal Secretary reaffirmed the government's unwavering commitment towards stability and growth of the power sector in Jammu and Kashmir.

"The anticipated implementation of these directives is poised not only to improve the reliability of power supply but also to fortify the financial health of the power sector, ensuring a resilient and responsive energy infrastructure for the people of the region," he added.

Dr Mukhtar also had a word of precaution for those driving on the national highway.

"Those driving on the National Highway need to take precautions, in order to avoid major accidents. Those to go out for morning and evening walks need to take precautions because the pollution levels are high during mornings and evenings' will result in appropriate penal action against those responsible for not filing the status report," the court said.

It also directed the government to indicate status regarding the current condition of Anchar Lake.

The directions followed submissions by Amicus Curiae that the Anchar Lake is in dire situation and needs immediate intervention from the Court for its protection.

There are seven wetlands covered under the Ramsar Convention on Wetlands and include Hokersar, Wular Lake, Shalbugh and Haigam in Kashmir Valley; Tso Moriri and Tso Kar in Ladakh and Surinsar-Mansar Lakes Jammu.

The High Court, following the directions by the Supreme Court on 3 April 2017, had treated an affidavit filed by the petitioner M K Balakrishnan before the apex court regarding certain wetlands which were covered under the Ramsar Convention on Wetlands as PIL

The Top Court had asked the Chief Justices of the concerned High Courts to treat the affidavit as a suo moto PIL and, if necessary, appoint an amicus curiae to assist the court so as to ensure that the Ramsar Convention sites within their jurisdiction were properly maintained.

The High Court pursuant to the directions registered the affidavit as PIL on its own motion and in its first order on the PIL on 28 August 2018, underlined that the "importance of preservation of Wetlands and Water Bodies cannot be sufficiently emphasized as well as the need to set up a regulatory mechanism for all wetlands so as to maintain their ecological character and ultimately support their integrated management in the three regions of the (then) State (Kashmir, Jammu and Ladakh)."

Study Reveals How Hunger Influences Decision-Making

Agenceis

A study on mice has shown how gut-produced hunger hormones can influence decision-making and drive an animal's behaviour. The researchers said that the findings demonstrate how the hunger hormone can cross the blood-brain barrier and directly impact the brain to drive activity, controlling a circuit in the brain that is likely to be the same or similar in humans.

The blood-brain barrier is known to strictly restrict many substances in the blood from reaching the brain. The study findings are published in the journal, Neuron Researchers put mice in an arena that had some food, and looked at how the mice acted when they were hungry or full.

While all the mice spent time investigating the food, only the hungry ones would begin eating, the researchers at University College London, UK, found.

They also used brain imaging to study activity in the mice's ventral hippocampus, which is a decisionmaking part of the brain understood to help form and use memories to guide behaviour.

The researchers found that activity in a subset of brain cells in the ventral hippocampus increased when the mice approached the food and that this neural activity inhibited them from eating.

However, when the mice were hungry, less neural activity in this brain region was observed and therefore, they were not inhibited from eating. The researchers also found that this corresponded to high levels of the hunger hormone ghrelin circulating in the blood.

Further, by activating these ventral hippocampal neu-rons, the researchers were able to experimentally make mice behave as if they were full and therefore stopped eating. Researchers also said that the findings could contribute to research into the mechanisms of eating disorders, along with other links between diet and other health outcomes such as risk of mental illnesses.

The scientists said they are continuing their research by investigating whether hunger can impact learning or memory by checking if mice perform non-food-specific tasks differently depending on how hungry they are.

PARIS: The global average temperature on Friday was more than two degrees Celsius hotter than pre-industrial levels for the first time on record, Europe's Copernicus climate monitor said Monday.

Months of extraordinary heat is expected to make 2023 the hottest year in history, with droughts, massive wildfires and fierce storms ravaging swathes of the planet.

According to provisional data, global temperatures on November 17 were 2.06C above the pre-industrial average, Samantha Burgess, Deputy Head of the EU's Climate Change Service (C3S) said on X, formerly known as Twitter.

"This was the first day when global temperature was more than 2C above 1850-1900 levels," she added.

The 2015 Paris Agreement enshrined the goal of holding the increase in the global average temperature to "well below" 2C above pre-industrial levels and to aim for a safer 1.5C.

One day above 2C does not mean that the Paris threshold has been breached -- the deal instead refers to change measured over decades.

Climate experts have since urged the world to aim for the since June, according to Copernicus, which said that 2023 would with "near certainty" surpass the hottest year on record set in 2016.

Beyond these official records, scientists say proxy data for the climate going back further -- like tree rings or ice cores -- suggests the temperatures seen this year could be unprecedented in human history, potentially the warmest in more than 100,000 years. October was 1.7C warmer than an estimate of that month's average for the pre-industrial era, Copernicus said earlier this month.

And global average temperatures since January have been the highest in records going back to 1940, the monitor added, registering 1.43C above the 1850-1900 pre-industrial average.

Leaders meeting November 30 to December 12 in the United Arab Emirates for the COP28 conference will have to respond to a damning progress report on the world's Paris pledges after major scientific studies have made clear the world is far off track. The conference is expected to draw up the first official assessment of the Paris Agreement and, if possible, corrective measures.

2 Rafale Jets Were Dispatched After Reports Of UFOs Near Imphal Airport

Agenceis

The Indian Air Force (IAF), soon after receiving information about the sighting of an unidentified flying object near the Imphal airport on Sunday, scrambled its Rafale fighter aircraft to search for them.

The Unidentified Flying Object was sighted over the Imphal airport around 2:30 pm yesterday after which a few commercial flights were affected.

"Soon after information about the UFO near the Imphal airport was re-

"The agencies concerned are trying to find out the details of the UFO as there are videos of the UFO over the Imphal airport," they said.

Soon after the Imphal airport was cleared for flying, the Shillong-headguartered Eastern Command of the Indian Air Force stated that it had activated its Air Defence response mechanism without giving any specific details of the steps taken by it.

Eastern Command, in a post on 'X' (formerly Twitter), said, "IAF activated its Air Defence response mechanism based on visual inputs from Imphal airport. The small object was not seen thereafter.

The Rafale fighters of the Indian Air Force are deployed at the Hashimara air base in West Bengal and keep flying from different air bases in the eastern sector along the China border.
